Sprinkling ban may continue through August

A village sprinkling ban prohibiting all non-essential uses of water is expected to continue through August, Village Mgr. Terry L. Zerkle said.

"If we continue to have the type of weather we've had the past five days with no rain, we'll have to continue with the sprinkling ban. That applies pretty much to the months of July and August," he said.

Village officials imposed the ban June 19 when a pump motor in one of the villages three deep wells broke. Lawrence Oppenheimer, director of public works, said the ban was called for when water levels in village wells dropped to 12 feet. He said a critical situation exists when the water level drops to 14 feet.

Under the ban, all non-essential uses of water, including lawn sprinkling and car washing, are prohibited.

ZERKLE SAID he expects the pump motor to be repaired by Thursday.

"We'll continue to monitor the situation on a day-to-day basis. Right now the water situation is fairly stable but that can be attributed to the sprinkling ban in on," he said.

Zerkle said problems with the well have created a "critical" situation in portions of the village.

"We need the cooperation of the total village for the ban. We've had pretty good response but there have been a few violations," he said.

Wheeling Fire Chief Bernie Koepen said last week that low water pressure in village wells could cause problems in fighting a major fire in the village. He said the sprinkling ban has "helped considerably."

The village board has asked the village attorney to prepare an ordinance limiting lawn sprinkling and other "nonessential" uses of water to Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Current village ordinance limits residents with odd-numbered addresses to watering on odd-numbered days and residents with even numbered addresses to watering on even numbered days.

Findings to be released on village union request

Wheeling trustees tonight are expected to release Village Mgr. Terry L. Zerkle's recommendations on village employees' request for union representation.

The meeting is at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Trustees last week met in closed session with Zerkle to discuss his report on collective bargaining for public employees. Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said Zerkle was directed "to implement his report" but declined to comment on its contents.

Village trustees last month asked Zerkle to meet with representatives of the Combined Counties Police Assn. (CCPA) and the Assn. of Independent Municipal Employees (AIME). The board in June denied an employee request that the two unions be recognized as collective bargaining agents.

Scanlon earlier had said he asked Zerkle to review the request because of the village manager's "good background" in labor relations.

CCPA officials earlier this year said they were approached by village employees who said they were concerned about problems with salary negotiations with the board.

THE BOARD later broke off salary talks, saying there was no money available to grant pay increases in 1976-77.

Leonard Jaglarski, executive vice president of the Combined Counties Police Assn., has asked the board to bring in a mediator to resolve the dispute over union recognition. CCPA officials have charged trustees with bargaining in "bad faith" by their refusal to discuss union representation for village employees.

The village board traditionally has refused to recognize unions for salary negotiations. Past salary agreements were negotiated with a committee of employee representatives.

Union officials said they represent more than 90 per cent of the police department personnel and more than 80 per cent of the village firefighters. They said they also represent a majority of the other village employees, including secretaries, clerks and public works employees.

Jaycees' carnival opens Wednesday

The Wheeling Jaycees will sponsor a carnival at Wheeling High School, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd.

The carnival will be open from 6 to 11 p.m. nightly. Free rides for the handicapped will be offered from 4 to 6 p.m. Thursday. The handicapped children must be accompanied by an adult.

A jumbo demonstration will be held at 8:30 p.m. Saturday at the carnival. The Jaycees also will raffle off a bicycle. Tickets for the bicycle will be distributed for free at the carnival.

For further information, call Marty Murphy at 537-8722.

DAVID HEIER

Little big man making sprint for success

by DON FRISKE

To be a successful jockey, you have to be small, but think big.

David Heier, an 18-year-old learning the craft at Arlington Park, fits the descriptions.

The 5-foot-3, 165-pound apprentice jockey, who is currently living with his father in Mount Prospect, has set high goals for himself.

ABOUT FIVE years ago, he was in New Orleans, where he was convinced that his future should be at the race track.

"This guy told me that jockeys drive around in big cars, flash big bills and have lots of beautiful women around them," Heier said after a race last week. "Right there and then, I said that's for me."

Heier remembered how his grandmother used to kid him about being small and he was impressed by the highly optimistic advice of his new friend.

"I knew I had to learn and start from the bottom, but I never really knew what I was in for," Heier said.

HE EXPLAINED how he was "messed over" for three years by people who owned horses, but knew little about them. His first experience was with the uncle of his new friend in California.

After spending six months there, he returned to New Orleans for a year. When the race season was over, he headed for California again.

He was hitchhiking and during the trip he somehow got separated from the others he was travelling with.

"I ended up in Denver, Colo., and went straight to the nearest track," he said. "That's all I knew and I figured I could get a job. I worked there for about four or five months."

HEIER SPENT three years on the ground level as a groom and a hotwalker. After spending some time in New York and Florida, he made a deal with a man in New Orleans.

"I galloped all of his horses for free, just so I could get my license. I did this for two months earlier this year. It was hard work," Heier said.

But the deal paid off in other ways. He met Gerald Sampla, the man he feels helped him the most.

"I owe a lot to him, though he won't take any credit for it," Heier said. "He looked after me, taught me how to relax a horse and he got on my back a lot, which upset me at the time. But I realized now that it paid off."

HEIER HAS been racing since February. He rode in three races in New Orleans and has been in the same number at Arlington Park this season.

"Jockeys are like fingerprints," he said. "Each has their own technique and style. You have to take the best points from the best jockeys and also watch their mistakes and then build your own style around that."

Heier took three years to distinguish between the people who were making false promises and those who were sincere.

"IF I HADN'T been messed over for so many years, I'd have been riding a long time ago. There were many times when I had reasons — valid reasons — to quit, but I knew that I would make it sooner or later," he said.

Even though he admits he has a long way to go, he has matured much in the past few years. During a time when many teen-agers wait for their future come to them, Heier was

Delegates sample the Big Apple

by STEVE BROWN
Herald political writer

NEW YORK — U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., Sunday received formal endorsement for the vice presidential nomination from the Illinois delegation to the Democratic National Convention. But mostly it was a day for delegates to begin finding their way around New York City amidst delays and unfamiliar surroundings.

Stevenson's endorsement came after the state delegation caucused to elect Mayor Richard J. Daley as its chairman. The state delegation's demonstration of unity was in stark contrast to the 1972 convention when Daley and the bulk of his delegates from Chicago were ousted from the gathering in a credentials battle.

The show of unity began when James Wall of Elmhurst, Carter's Illinois campaign manager, nominated Daley for the chairmanship. Wall backed George McGovern in 1972 and frequently has found himself at odds with the mayor.

Several statewide candidates, including Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, spoke about the problems in 1972 and this year's harmony indicating the strength of the Democratic party in Illinois.

AN EXPECTED fight over the election of a vice chairman evaporated when Lucille Gallagher, Arlington Heights, declined to put her name in nomination for the position. A number of women

Schaumburg man faces murder rap

A 19-year-old Schaumburg man living in the home of a Schaumburg woman and her son, is charged with the brutal stabbing murder of the woman early Saturday after he returned home from a night of drinking with friends, police said.

Joseph Patrick Dacy will appear in court today charged with murdering Mirinda Isabel Enck, 55, in her home, 1428 Churchill Rd. Dacy, a former classmate of 18-year-old Brian Enck at Conant High School, had been living in the $60,000 home for 4½ months, police said.

Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy described Dacy as a quiet person, an aspiring rock musician. He left his parents' home, 182 Gentry Rd., Hoffman Estates, and moved in to the Enck home, Conroy said.

Man drowns in Des Plaines

John Rufo, 19, of Chicago, drowned Sunday while swimming in a private lake in Des Plaines with his brother, Julio, 26, Cook County Sheriff's Police said. His body was recovered about 25 feet from shore.

Prospect Heights barn burns

Disaster struck one of the few remaining farms in the Northwest suburbs early Saturday when fire gutted a barn in Prospect Heights.

Unofficial estimates stated William and Art Kutz, 4 W. Palatine Rd., lost $20,000 in the blaze, which started in their wood-frame barn shortly before 5 a.m. Saturday and destroyed farm machinery stored in the building.

The fire was confined to the barn, and firefighters had the blaze extinguished within 2½ hours, firemen said. Five Wheeling units and three tankers from Prospect Heights and Mount Prospect responded to the alarm, firefighters said.

One firefighter was slightly injured and was treated at the scene of the blaze for an eye injury. Firefighters are investigating the cause of the blaze.

Roselle man killed in auto crash

A 24-year-old Roselle man was killed early Sunday when his car crashed through the window of A.B. Dick Co. in Elk Grove Village. Firefighters said a car driven by Raymond Rozko, 35 W. Hatten-dorf, Roselle, crashed into the firm at 2200 Arthur Ave. at approximately midnight Sunday. Rozko's passenger, Paulino Leal, 271 Oakwood, Wood Dale, reportedly suffered a fractured right leg in the crash. Leal was transported to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, where he was reported in fair condition at the hospital Sunday afternoon. Police are investigating what caused the accident, which was discovered at 7:30 a.m. Sunday.

Investigator hired to find books

A private investigator has been hired by the Northwest Suburban Library System to locate $7,000 worth of missing books from the Schaumburg Township Library and several other suburban libraries. Craig Hull of Dunstan Private Investigations, Elgin, said information thus far on the thefts is of little help in finding the books. Almost $3,600 worth of books were taken from the township library, most of them business related books, and were checked out with fraudulent Chicago library cards through a reciprocal borrowing agreement among suburban and city libraries. Other libraries hit were Evanston, Northbrook and Skokie.

A break in the heat . . .

AROUND THE NATION: Showers and thunderstorms may develop in portions of the Atlantic coastal states, the northern Plains, the Upper Mississippi Valley, the southern Plains and the Southern Plateau regions. The rest of the nation should have fair weather.

AROUND THE STATE: North: Mostly sunny but a little cooler and less humid, highs in the 70s. Fair and cooler tonight, lows in the upper 50s. South: Partly sunny with a chance of thunderstorms and turning cooler, highs in the 90s. Cooler tonight, lows in the 60s.

All-time high electric use

Weekend temperature hits 100

Weekend temperatures hit 100 degrees Saturday in the Northwest suburbs as electrical energy consumption broke an all-time record.

Commonwealth Edison spokesman said the circuits are handling the demand with no major voltage drops.

Saturday's high was 100, only two degrees less than the record 102 set in 1936. Sunday's high of 94 was two degrees below the 96 record for that day.

Throughout the area, residents were forced to observe village bans on sprinkling because of low water pressure.

WHILE THE hot, humid weather lingered over the middle of the nation, thunderstorms roared through the middle Atlantic states.

A cool air mass pushed its way into the extreme North Central states, with temperatures reaching only the 60s and upper 50s in North Dakota, northern Minnesota and upper Michigan.

Temperatures reached into the 90s in the Ohio Valley, the Midwest and the central Plains for the second straight day.

In Chicago, where Saturday's 100-degree reading was the hottest in five years, a fire department official blamed the stifling temperatures for a fire in the attic of a Loop coffee shop.

The temperature in the mid 90s caused a "spontaneous combustion" of supplies stored in the attic, Fire Marshal John Windle said. No one was injured and damage was described as only "moderate."

HIGH HUMIDITY also covered the eastern half of the nation. Dover, Del., was soaked with more than 2½ inches of rain during a six-hour period when thunderstorms moved across the middle Atlantic states.

More than an inch of rain fell at Philadelphia, Pa., Wilmington, Del., and Patuxent River Naval Air Station, Md. 3 inch-size hail fell near Tusculum, Pa.

Some heavy thunderstorms fell in the southern Great Lakes region. Mount Clemens, Mich., received more than an inch of rain.

A severe thunderstorm watch was in effect until Sunday night for much of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and portions of southeast Michigan, northern Ohio, west New York and northern Maryland.

Girl Scout camp signup under way

Applications for Girl Scout Day Camp at Deer Grove July 20-23 and 27-30 are available at council headquarters, 570 E. Higgins, Elk Grove Village.

The 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. eight-day program, for girls ages 6 to 16 includes hiking, crafts, outdoor cooking and Indian culture.

The registration fee is $10 per session for each girl. Bus transportation from the Palatine area is available for an additional $9.

Girls do not have to be members of the Girl Scouts.

Adult volunteers who wish to participate in the program may enroll three of their children free. Special sections for older boys and small children, ages 3 or over, are available for children of volunteers.

Call Mrs. Bogan at 358-7374 for further information.

Harper annual dinner set today

Harper College's annual dinner and pops concert will be at 5 p.m. today on the patio overlooking the campus lake, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

The Harper Community Orchestra will be featured at 7 p.m. after the dinner. The event is free to persons with a Harper identification card. Public admission is $2 for adults, $1.50 for children and free for children under 6. For information, call 397-3000, ext. 242.

Court not sympathetic to 'unfair treatment' claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans claiming unfair treatment by their government are getting less sympathy from the Supreme Court.

With only two members consistently dissenting, the justices in the term ended last Tuesday went far in turning economic and criminal matters over to state courts and legislatures, allowed police wide-ranging powers to seize evidence and limited second-guessing of state courts by federal tribunals.

But the court also erected strict barriers to trial judges attempting to "gag" press coverage of criminal cases and reaffirmed the constitutional right of women to obtain abortions with only minimal interference from state laws.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr., 70, a majority stalwart under the late Chief Justice Earl Warren, has become a bitter dissenter in Warren E. Burger's court. Brennan dissented wholly or in part in 52 of the 152 opinions handed down in the recent term.

Brennan's sole companion much of the time was Justice Thurgood Marshall, 68, the court's first black member, who suffered a heart attack as the term was closing. He is recovering at the Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md.

The term saw the end of an era with Justice William O. Douglas, appointed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1939, succeeded by John Paul Stevens, an antitrust lawyer who sat on the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago. Stevens exhibited no shyness about making his views known but his votes showed no particular philosophical leaning.

With the four members appointed by former President Richard M. Nixon in firm control in individual liberties areas, the court left the utility and morality of capital punishment to state lawmakers and ruled that federal courts may no longer examine claims of state prisoners that they have been convicted through illegally seized evidence.

The prisoner appeal issue cut back on a major right afforded the accused by the Warren Court. The new court majority said state judges are generally able to decide illegal search issues without the need for federal court review.

In the area of personal privacy, the court expanded its 1973 abortion ruling by eliminating husbands and parents from the decision-making process between the woman and her doctor. Cases to determine when the operation must be done at state expense were accepted for review in the fall.

Although the court demolished the traditional patronage system by ruling that non-civil service workers can't be fired for political reasons, it held that city and state employees can't complain to a federal court if they are discharged by mistake or on the basis of false information.

States can also force civil servants to retire at a mandatory age limit and police can be obliged to get a haircut.

City officials were found to have broad authority to locate "adult" bookstores and movies to avoid a skid row concentration. And in a fight over selling hot dogs in New Orleans' historic French Quarter the court said local economic regulation can't be challenged on grounds that it violates the Constitution's guarantee of "equal protection of the laws."

In several rulings, the court expanded the power of police to obtain evidence. Bank records and personal business data are subject to seizure, the court said, and no warrant is needed to arrest a person first seen outside when he flees into his home.

Blacks won some cases but lost more. They got the right to attend most private white schools. But in the heated controversy over busing the justices said public school authorities are under no obligation to adjust attendance zones for racial balance every year once compliance with a court order has been achieved.

In the area of free speech and press the court came close to saying that no circumstances can justify preventing the press from covering a criminal case. It did bar all "prior restraint" in reporting proceedings in open court.

Convention delegates get first sample of Big Apple

delegates had been promoting Gallagher's candidacy, but she decided to withdraw after two Chicago aldermen seconded the nomination of Sue Ellen Johnson, Wheaton, who won the position.

Just before he received the delegation's formal backing, Stevenson told the Herald that he is making no special preparations for the meeting.

"It will be a get-acquainted session," Stevenson said.

The senator already has met once with Carter and talked last week with Charles Kirbo, Carter's senior advisor who has been conducting in-depth interviews with potential vice presidential candidates.

"We will find out what Gov. Carter wants to do with the office," Stevenson said. "I'm already acquainted with the office and am not presently unemployed. I don't want to give up my present position for a ceremonial job."

MOST DELEGATES from the Northwest suburbs spent their first hours in New York attempting to find buses from airports to hotels, getting settled in their hotels and locating credentials.

"We got into our room and we did not get mugged," said State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, a delegate from the 12th congressional district.

Mrs. Gwen Martin of Arlington Heights said she had been dividing her time between getting unpacked and attending a meeting of the women delegates from Illinois who are trying to elect one of their own as chairman of the state delegation.

Most area delegates said they had not attempted to make the 20-block trek from their headquarters at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel to Madison Square Garden, site of the convention.

"I managed to get my name tag, but not much else," said Steve Maddock, a delegate from Des Plaines.

While Illinois Democrats were getting organized, the scene at Madison Square Garden was one of confusion. The massive convention center was dominated by news media personnel and workmen making final adjustments before the national convention begins Monday night.

In a briefing to reporters, National Democratic Committee Chairman Robert Strauss explained the workings of the convention and promised reporters that most of the sessions would end before midnight, New York time. The midnight adjournment time is something almost unheard of for the Democrats.

"SOME OF YOU have written that this will be a dull convention, but we will have a discussion of things that will be priority issues for the American people," Strauss said. "We will do this in an interesting, imaginative and exciting way."

As Strauss spoke, scores of workmen attempted to complete the installation of telephones and cables for television facilities and other news media operations.

Meanwhile, the convention, a large group of orderly demonstrators calling for an end to the "religious oppression of women" marched behind police barricades. While the group chanted and listened to speeches, no one at the assembly seemed to know exactly what organization was conducting the protest.

By noon, New York police had cordoned off the two-block area that includes the Garden and an adjacent office building. Mounted police aided other officers in directing traffic and controlling crowds that had gathered on the eve of the convention.

Boston cheers Queen, but . . .

Protesters chant 'Free Ireland'

BOSTON (UPI) — Demonstrators yelling for Britain to "Get Out of Ireland" crowded through a cheering throng to within five feet of Queen Elizabeth Sunday as she visited the cradle of the American Revolution.

The queen clearly looked tense as she viewed the pro-Irish placards — some reading "America-1776, Ireland-?" — waving among the welcoming American flags, Union Jacks and Bicentennial banners.

The several hundred demonstrators raised organized chants of "Free Ireland!" and "England Out!" Boston has a large population of Catholic Irish with close ties to Ireland. It was the first serious and sizable anti-British demonstration during the queen's Bicentennial visit to the United States.

But thousands of others cheered lustily in an effort to drown out the boos from demonstrators as the monarch was escorted to the reviewing stand for a parade. Authorities immediately summoned squads of extra police.

National guardsmen and police were lined almost shoulder to shoulder around the reviewing stand at Samuel Adams Park and closely watched the crowd.

Earlier, the queen visited some of the historic places of the American Revolution and said perhaps the revolutionaries of 1775 would be pleased she was there.

The queen, standing beneath the balcony of the Old State House and only a few feet from the site of the Boston Massacre, said, "We have been very moved by the welcome we have received in this city, particularly since it was here — in Boston — that 'it all began' and it was not many miles from here, at Lexington and Concord, that the first shots were fired in the war between Britain and America, 201 years ago."

Madrid cops, demonstrators clash

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Riot police swinging rubber truncheons and firing smoke grenades clashed Sunday in downtown Madrid with thousands of demonstrators at an unauthorized rally to demand amnesty for political prisoners.

The police also used a helicopter, two-man motorcycle teams, horses and water cannon to scatter the youthful demonstrators, who regrouped in small bands and shouted "amnesty and freedom!"

There was no immediate report of casualties during the more than two hours of running clashes. Opposition sources put the number of arrests at over 100, but this could not be confirmed immediately.

But despite the authorities' tough attitude, the newspaper El Pais said Sunday Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez's government will almost certainly grant some kind of an amnesty.

The newspaper said the issue is how many of Spain's estimated 600 political prisoners would be affected.

The clashes came at the end of a nationwide "Pro-Amnesty Week" sponsored by opposition and labor groups.

eventually we came together again as free peoples and friends and defended together the very ideals for which the American Revolution was fought."

It was the first visit by a reigning British monarch to Boston.

The queen and her husband, Prince Philip, were taken on a whirlwind tour of the city including Paul Wreth's home, Samuel Adams park, Faneuil Hall — all symbolic of the beginnings of the American revolution.

The Boston visit was the queen's last stop in the United States.

The queen arrived in Boston Harbor — scene of the Boston Tea Party — aboard the royal yacht Britannia and was met by the USS Constitution, the oldest commissioned warship in the nation.

The 179-year-old Constitution, which earned its nickname "Old Ironsides" because British cannonballs bounced off it, greeted the queen with a 21-gun salute from its aged cannons.

Uganda's Amin praises raid by Israelis

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — President Idi Amin of Uganda praised the airborne Israeli raid in Entebbe airport and said he has broken off relations with the Arab guerrilla organizations, an Israeli newspaper reported Sunday.

The newspaper Ma'ariv said Amin made the statements in a telephone call to Tel Aviv Friday to his former military adviser, reserve Col. Baruch Bar Lev.

"Not as a politician but as a professional army man, I must tell you that the (Israeli army) action was very good. Your commando is very good," Amin was quoted as saying.

According to the report, Amin broke off relations with the guerrilla organizations because of complications arising from the Entebbe hijack drama. "I don't want anything to do with them," he told Bar Lev, according to Ma'ariv. "You can tell (Premier Yitzhak) Rabin and the Israeli government that I have cut off relations with them and I am going to announce this to the press."

Israeli commandos rescued more than 100 hostages from pro-Palestinian hijackers in Entebbe July 3, killing seven out of the 10 guerrillas involved in the operation. Three Israeli civilians and one soldier died in the assault.

Bar Lev, a military adviser to Amin in the years when Uganda and Israel maintained good relations, made a number of telephone calls to Amin to negotiate the release of the hostages during the week preceding the raid.

Meanwhile, Dr. Maurice Assael, an Israeli psychiatrist who was quoted in a newspaper story as saying Amin suffered from syphilis said the report contained "some kind of exaggeration."

Yediot Aharonoth correspondent Dov Aitzman, who wrote the story, said he stood by his report.

Sinatra, Barbara Marx married in glittering affair

• Frank Sinatra ended the rumors Sunday by marrying his long-time fiancée Barbara Marx, the singer's fourth wife, in a "formal" wedding. Best man for the wedding was Freeman Gosden, of the old "Amos 'n Andy" radio series, while Beatrice Kurshak, wife of a prominent Los Angeles attorney, served as matron of honor at the glittering affair.

• Rock 'n' roll singer Elvis Presley will marry his longtime companion, Skye Alexander, in a Las Vegas civil ceremony Monday, Allan Wexler, vice president of RCA Records, announced Sunday. The marriage will be the second for Presley, 42, and the first for Miss Alexander, 24.

• Former President Richard Nixon, carrying a white gardenia and a peck of cards and letters, Sunday visited his ailing wife, Pat, at Long Beach Memorial Hospital. He told reporters Mrs. Nixon is "passing through the crisis" after suffering a stroke but will need therapy to regain full use of her left arm and leg. Mrs. Nixon remained in serious but stable condition since she was hospitalized Thursday.

Westinghouse geared for strike

Negotiators for the Westinghouse Electric Corp. and three unions bargained against a midnight deadline Sunday in an effort to avert a strike by 44,000 workers. A union spokesman said the negotiating committee recommended the rejection of the latest company offer because it "falls substantially short of the recent General Electric contract settlement it is modeled after." The spokesman reported "no progress" in talks Sunday.

N.Y. hospital strike arbitration asked

Governor Hugh Carey called Sunday for arbitration to resolve a strike by some 40,000 workers at 57 hospitals and nursing homes in the New York metropolitan area. The striking District 1199 of the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees has already agreed to arbitration, but management rejected this course in the absence of increased state funds for its facilities. The strike, the largest hospital labor dispute in U.S. history, involves X-ray technicians, janitors, sanitation men and nursing aides.

Plan recovery of miners' bodies

For four months, the bodies of 11 men have been buried 1,400 feet underground in a coal mine filled with deadly methane gas. On Wednesday, three specially trained crews will unseal and enter a section of the Scotia Coal Co. mine in Partridge, Ky. where two explosions killed 26 men in March. Breaking the seal on the mine should take a day or two, mining officials said, but they believe it may be two months before the bodies are recovered because of the danger of rockfalls and gas in the mine.

Quakes shake Panama-Colombia area

Two "major earthquakes" shook the mountainous area around the Panama-Colombia border Sunday, about 150 miles southeast of Panama City, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. "There are still no reports of damage or injuries near the earthquake epicenter although both earthquakes are capable of causing destruction in heavily populated areas," a spokesman said. A spokesman said the earthquake center in Golden, Colombia, reported the first quake, at 12:54 p.m., reached 7.0 on the Richter scale. Four hours later, a second tremor that reached 7.1 on the Richter scale was felt. He said it was unusual for two earthquakes to both be this intensity — a 7.0 Richter is the bottom limit for a major earthquake.

INVESTIGATORS ARE attempting to determine why two heavily loaded Southern Railway System freight trains involved in a head-on collision Saturday were on the same track. The two trains, both moving slowly, collided near Centerville. Two locomotives and about 15 cars were derailed. No injuries were reported.

Skinner asks state corruption ranking

Which of the 50 states is the most corrupt? That's the interesting question the legislative council will spend part of the summer trying to answer. The man who asked them to find out is state Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake. Despite scandals and-or convictions involving such notables as Paul Powell, Otto Kerner, Thomas Keane and untold numbers of legislators and local officials, Skinner says he doesn't think Illinois will turn out to be the most corrupt state.

He thinks oil politics will win that honor for Texas. But he also won't discount the possibility that New Jersey, Florida, Pennsylvania or Spiro Agnew's home state of Maryland might cop top honors. Skinner said last week he became interested in the general subject of political corruption several years ago at a college reunion when a political science professor told him, "You have to have corruption to make the system work." To fight that kind of acceptance of graft and impropriety, Skinner said, he wants to "somehow systematize" reports of political irregularities. If some precise index of corruption can be compiled, he said, voters will find it easier to assess the need for change in their state.

"At some point, you need to purge the system," he said. He said he'd like to have an index of the percentage of legislators indicted in each state, the numbers of local officials indicted and some overall impression of the seriousness of each state's problem. Skinner said he's not exactly sure how the corruption ranking might improve government.

Youth dies in cycle crash

Michael Dexter, 17, Galesburg, died Sunday of injuries sustained when he lost control of the motorcycle he was driving and it slid under a pickup truck. Authorities said Dexter was not touched by the truck. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital in Galesburg after the accident Saturday night, then was transferred to St. Francis Hospital in Peoria. He died three hours after the crash.

Woman run over by her car

Helen Ohlendorf, 77, Freeport, was killed Saturday when she was struck by her own car while visiting her husband's grave at the Oakland Cemetery near Freeport. Stephenson County sheriff's deputies said Mrs. Ohlendorf apparently parked the car on the roadway above the cemetery and left it in neutral. The car rolled backward down an embankment, struck her and came to a stop against a tree. Mrs. Ohlendorf was pronounced dead at the scene by county coroner Dick Cramer, who said an autopsy and an inquest were pending. He said he found evidence of tire marks on Mrs. Ohlendorf's body.

Teen drowns in pool

A Michigan teen-ager drowned Saturday in the pool beneath a spillway at Devil's Kitchen Lake near Carterville. Authorities said Mark Caratelli, 17, Madison Heights, Mich., apparently was swimming in the pool or fell into the water while fishing. He and his parents had been on a picnic at the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Preserve near this Southern Illinois town during a vacation visit with Caratelli's uncle, Ray Lukac, Herrin.

2 policemen shot in narcotics raid

Two Chicago policemen were shot during a narcotics raid on a South Side apartment Saturday night. Two brothers were charged in the case. Officer Clarence Travis, 43, was admitted to St. Bernard Hospital with a gunshot wound in his left wrist. He was listed in good condition Sunday. Lovejoy Foster, 44, was treated for a graze wound near his left eye and released. The two were shot when they attempted to serve a search warrant at an apartment, authorities said. William Currie, 22, was charged with two counts of attempted murder, two counts of aggravated battery and possession of heroin.

Currie's brother, Joseph, 26, was charged with possession of heroin. Bond for William Currie was set at $100,000 and at $10,000 for Joseph Currie. Both cases were continued until Tuesday.

Powder Puff pilots brave storm, land in Wilmington

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Approximately 35 female pilots flying in the 29th annual Powder Puff Derby braved a major East Coast thunderstorm system Sunday and landed at the Wilmington airport, the last stop on their 2,916 mile coast-to-coast journey.

The rest of the 200 planes which took off Friday from Sacramento, Calif., are expected in Monday the last day of the contest.

Three planes landed in Wilmington on Saturday.

A contest official said poor weather delayed many of the pilots Sunday morning, but by mid-day most were in the air, heading east.

"THEY'RE PRETTY tough gals, a little rain won't bother them," the spokeswoman said.

Most of the planes landing Sunday flew in from Parkersburg, W.Va., or Nashville.

This year's event is the last in the 47 year history of the contest, which pits the flying skills of the nation's best female pilots against one another.

The first Powder Puff Derby was organized by Amelia Earhart in 1929. It has been an annual event since 1947.

Hopefuls sought for school post

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 will accept applications until July 19 from residents who are interested in filling the vacancy on the board of education created by the resignation of Jack Lane.

Lane's resignation was announced at the June 24 board meeting.

Lane, of 3112 N. Volz Dr., Arlington Heights, said he resigned from the board after five years because he is moving out of the district.

Residents who are interested in applying for the position may contact the administration center at 537-8270.

The board will conduct interviews with prospective candidates beginning at 7:30 p.m. July 21. The new board member will be announced at the July 22 board meeting.

Anyone who is at least 18 years old, a resident of the district for at least a year and a registered voter, may apply for the post.

Buffalo Grove to weigh annex of Chevy Chase

by BILL HURLEY

The annexation of a 550-acre parcel, including the Chevy Chase Country Club and surrounding property, will be considered tonight by the Buffalo Grove Village Board.

The proposed annexation would extend the village boundaries more than two miles east, increasing the size of Buffalo Grove by one-fourth.

The land is predominantly north of the Lake-Cook county border and is bordered by the golf course on the north, Portwine Road on the east and the village limits on the west.

The board will meet to consider the annexation at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Last year, residents of the 40 home Chevy Chase subdivision on Milwaukee Avenue, which is included in the proposed annexation, petitioned the Wheeling Village Board asking that Wheeling annex the property before Buffalo Grove did.

RESIDENTS SAID they prefer Wheeling because Buffalo Grove's master plan calls for development of an industrial park nearby. The tentative Wheeling master plan called for townhouse development.

Wheeling officials later labeled the Chevy Chase area a priority annexation and Buffalo Grove officials said it would be too costly to annex.

William Johnson, co-owner of the land that would be annexed, said he had considered annexing to Wheeling but added, "After some study we feel the Village of Buffalo Grove would be the most advantageous to annex to."

Johnson said development plans will be submitted to the plan commission at a later date. He said most of the land now is vacant.

MOST OF the area is designated for annexation on the Buffalo Grove master plan and is zoned for residential, commercial and industrial use. The plan specifies that the golf course should remain open space.

The proposal includes a stretch of land between Milwaukee Avenue and Portwine Road that is not designated for annexation in the master plan.

The requested annexation is the most dramatic expansion of village lines proposed since Centex Homes Corp. asked Buffalo Grove to annex the 86-acre Hank farm property immediately north of Chevy Chase Country Club several years ago. The village ultimately rejected the development because of the heavy concentration of multiple-family dwellings, but not until after the Village of Wheeling had expressed concern about Buffalo Grove's eastward expansion.

Alexian adolescent program

Kids in crisis given a helping hand

By BILLIE BACHUBER

Troubled teenagers run away from home, suffer depression, become emotionally unstable — some psychotic. They may take drugs, encounter problems in school. Most experience difficulties at home.

"All kids break rules. But some hurt themselves and their future. They get into trouble and have to learn to deal with it," said Bill Chambers, adolescent program coordinator in the Mental Health Unit at Niehoff Pavilion, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

Chambers and Jerry Parker, school teacher, work full-time with such kids. They cooperate with a staff of mental health experts in a short term, crisis-oriented program designed to help teenagers get their lives together. Average treatment is about one month for about six to eight patients.

Professionals at ABMC saw the need, designed... and now run a concentrated, consistent and organized program to help distressed teens. The program is set up with rules and boundaries that adolescent patients must follow.

"Kids must learn to live within limits, to handle rules in family, at school and in society," Chambers pointed out.

NOW INTO ITS second year, the teen program is based on incentive and reward, not punishment.

Young patients get the guidance and support they need as they learn to resolve conflicts that are making them ill.

Kids in crisis learn to cope with emotional problems within a "level" (incentive) system that balances responsibility with privilege. "As the young patient develops more responsibility for his behavior, his privileges increase," Chambers explained the four-level, step-by-step program aimed toward emotional growth. "And when the teen fails to choose appropriate behavior and to accept consequences for his lack of responsibility, his privileges are withdrawn and must be earned again," he continued.

TEACHING TEENS to live within limits is the aim of the Alexian program for troubled youths, coordinated by Bill Chambers.

EDUCATION NEED not be interrupted when a teenager enters the Alexian Brothers' adolescent health program. Teacher Jerry Parker works closely with patients and their school personnel to keep the youngsters from falling behind in their schoolwork.

For the adolescent on-the-mend privileges are restored and increased as he/she begins to recognize problems and to deal with them positively.

As the patient opens up to treatment, he is allowed outside the closed unit to go swimming, bowling and for other recreation. And he may have more parental visits, more phone calls and is allowed to eat in the cafeteria. He progressively earns more and more freedom as he improves.

Too, as teens learn to verbalize and share their feelings, take care of personal needs, participate in group activities and others, they need not fall behind in their school work. Jerry Parker is there to help them.

JERRY WORKS CLOSELY (no more than four students at a time) with adolescents and with their school counselors and teachers. "I go with their school assignments but adapt them to make it more interesting for the students," he said.

One student, Parker recalled, was assigned to write an essay on disease for his regular health class. When the student merely compiled facts, Jerry suggested he interview hospital nurses, and use their remarks for added interest. "Most kids work harder here than they do in school," he said.

Parker, who has a bachelor's in psychology from DePauw University and a master's in education from the University of Chicago, teaches eight, 25-minute classes daily with subjects ranging from world history, science and math to academic shop courses. He likes the personal touch he shares with his students.

Jerry's rapport with kids inspires their confidence. One student asked him, "Why can't I have an adult like you to sit down and talk to me? Listen to me?" "If parents would just sit down and talk to their kids," Parker mused.

Most kids who are hospitalized don't want to be confined, according to Bill Chambers. Their parents bring them in for help, believing the child's problem is strictly the child's.

THE MENTAL HEALTH team must work through such resistance until parents recognize no one is "to blame" for their child's trouble. "Although no one is to blame, each person has his part, and we emphasize family involvement here," said Chambers.

Improving family communications is important in helping teenagers to get well. "In most cases there's poor communication in the family; sometimes, nothing at all except maybe just yelling at each other," Bill said.

Communication, consistency, follow-through and caring make for good family relationships. "Loving a child isn't enough. Parents have to show they love their child but in such a way that the love benefits both parents and child," Chambers advises.

Easing the transition between hospital and home is now part of a new out-patient program for adolescents at ABMC. "Here kids get support, help and confidence. Sometimes it's hard to adjust to leaving. This will give them a chance to come back if they need us," Chambers said.

Bill, who earned a bachelor's degree in English at Northwestern University and his master's at Tufts, later became a psychiatric technician with on-the-job training. He recently applied to study in a two-year program at the Family Institute of Chicago, affiliated with Northwestern University. He will apply the added expertise to his present job, he said.

Spaghetti straps give home seamstress trouble

Dear Eunice Farmer,

With all the sun dresses back in style, I am faced with the problem of making those very tiny "spaghetti straps." I don't seem to have any problem when working with lingerie fabric. I simply use the long tube turner. However, with heavier fabrics, I'm not having such good luck. What is the best advice you can give us on making these very narrow straps? —Mrs. V.P.

Dear Mrs. V.P.,

With woven fabrics, these straps should be cut on the bias. I also prefer using a small string as an insert. It keeps the straps nice and firm and rounded.

Cut bias strips of fabric about one inch wide. The small string or cording to be used inside should be cut twice the length of the finished straps. Fold the string in half and fasten the half way point to one end of your bias strip, on the right side of the fabric.

Next, fold the bias strip in half over the string, right sides together. Begin machine stitching about one-eighth to one-quarter inch from the fold, enclosing the string and pulling the fabric slightly as you stitch. When stitching is completed, cut the excess fabric from your folded strip. You should have exactly the same amount of fabric on both sides of the stitching line.

Now you are ready to turn the strip right side out. Gently pull the string

simple

by Eunice Farmer

that is extending at the end. The beginning is the most difficult part, and you have to gently coax it through. Once it has begun to turn in, you will have no further problem. Keep the bias in one position. Don't allow it to twist as you turn it right side out.

If you have done this correctly, you should have a nice, tight, cording that looks very professional. If you would like more instructions and illustrated details, please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with 25 cents to Eunice Farmer, in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, and request the leaflet on spaghetti straps and Chinese ball buttons. You'll find it very helpful.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

So many of the styles today call for a long, tie belt to be made out of the same fabric as the dress. I have tried this many, many times and always have the same disastrous results. The tie turns into a skinny rolled over belt that is very unattractive because it's always wrinkled and looks like a rag. Surely there must be some way to keep these belts from turning over. I tried interfacing and the belt became too stiff and wouldn't tie nicely. —Marion R.

Dear Marion,

I couldn't agree more. I have not only had this happen to me personally, but I have seen this on any number of women. It is caused by a number of factors, mainly the way we are built. Unless you are very thin and straight through the waistline area, the tie belt is certainly going to fold over and look unattractive.

Measure your waistline, deduct about two or three inches and cut a strip of web type belting. It isn't too heavy and is guaranteed to be non-roll. This can be stitched to the belt facing at each end. Be sure to center it on the belt.

Next, fold the belt with right sides together and complete your stitching. When the belt is turned to the right side, the belting won't show. When you place it around your waist, it will stay nice and straight because of the belting. However, it will be soft enough to tie in a nice bow at the waist because you didn't apply the belting to the entire belt.

Try it — it has certainly answered my needs. Hope it helps you, too.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

A recent pattern I completed has a short placket closing at the front neckline. It is so short that I can hardly get the dress over my head and when I do, my hair is a disaster. If I make the dress again, would it spoil the design to make this placket longer and add an additional button? —Mrs. F.H.H.

Dear Mrs. F.H.H.,

For those of us who are used to having a larger opening in our dresses and shirts, this can be very frustrating. Examine the style of your dress pattern before you change this detail. It might not look right if you add another button.

There is another solution, however. You may add a seam allowance to the center back of your dress if there isn't a seam in the pattern (I would add about 3/4 inch while you are at it). Insert a regular lapped zipper. If the closing involves the collar, you may also add a seam to the center back of the collar.

Your garment will look exactly as the pattern from the front, but because of the zipper closing you have added, it will be much easier to slip on and off. The measurements will remain the same. Please try it — it works.

The doctor says

by Lawrence F. Lamb, M.D.

Gall bladder tests show touchy stomach

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like some information on a nervous stomach. I have a bitter taste almost every morning when I first get up.

I went for a gall bladder X ray and my doctor gave me eight dye tablets to take 11 hours before the X ray. Around 4:30 the next morning my head started spinning and I almost passed out. Then I had diarrhea. I asked the nurse about this and she said the dye pills sometimes did this.

My gall bladder had swollen to the size of a hen's egg. Then I was given an egg yolk mix to drink, waited 40 minutes and had two more X rays. My gall bladder had returned to normal.

The doctor said my gall bladder was OK but I had a nervous stomach. Could this be true? Is it serious? When I was X-rayed could they tell if I had ulcers or a tumor too?

DEAR READER — Your experience with the gall bladder test was not too unusual. The nurse was right — the pills do act as a laxative to some people.

Your gall bladder did not swell up in an abnormal fashion. The gall bladder is designed to collect bile formed by the liver. When it fills it swells normally. The pills you took contain a dye that is excreted by the liver in the bile. The dye shows up on X rays and in this way the gall bladder, full of dye stained bile, can be seen. Your description is of a normally filled gall bladder.

If your gall bladder had contained stones they would have been outlined in the dyestained bile. Then the drink you had contained fat. Fat stimulates the gall bladder to contract, expelling the stored bile. The X rays showed that your gall bladder responded normally and emptied when you drank or ate fat. The very reason why you are not supposed to eat anything that would contain any fat after you have taken the dye pills and before you have your first X ray is because fat stimulates the gall bladder to contract.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-9, Gall Stones and Gall Bladder Disease. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 5 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10018.

"Nervous stomach" covers a lot of territory. It is true that nervous tension can cause indigestion symptoms or acid indigestion. The nervous tension causes the stomach to form excess amounts of acid digestive juice. This condition can lead to ulcers. The taste in your mouth suggests though that the stomach contents leaked backward into the lower esophagus while you were lying down. Try not eating anything for at least three hours before you go to bed, take some antacid also, and see if that helps.

An X ray of the gall bladder alone will not outline the stomach to tell you if there is disease in the stomach or if you have a hernia through the diaphragm. However, if your doctor had you drink a milk shake-thickness drink after your gall-bladder X rays he may have been X-raying your stomach at that time. Ask him what he did and how he knows that you do not have a hernia through the diaphragm or a peptic ulcer. Look at your bill and if it does not include a bill for X rays of the stomach — perhaps labeled as examination of the upper gastrointestinal system (often noted Upper GI) — your stomach has not been examined.

Special cleaner, fabric spray is best for velvet

Dear Dorothy: I have two gold velvet chairs and the arms are slightly soiled. The chairs do not require professional cleaning at this time — just spot cleaning. Can you advise me as to the proper method I should follow? — Mrs. Frank R. Reis Experimented with a new velvet pillow. Sprayed one side with a fabric protector and, when it dried, found anything put on it, including water, rolled right off. Then tried the other side; water stained it but the cleaner I tried did a fine job. So you'll find good cleaners specifically for velvet, but you'd be wise to reconsider — have the chairs cleaned completely by a professional and then give them fabric protection treatment.

Dear Dorothy: Everybody has a favorite baked chicken recipe and so have I. All you do is spread a three-pound cut-up fryer in a greased baking pan and spread over it one-third cup of mayonnaise and sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Bake uncovered for 45 minutes at 375 degrees. I call it Charlotte's Baked Chicken and you'll never believe how good it is! — Charlotte Stevens Holtsman

Dear Dorothy: Someone said if you put a burned pan in the sun, the burned stuff can be wiped off with a damp cloth. Do you have to put some kind of solution in it? — Cynthia Engleman

No. It just has to be a hot sun. Sometimes it takes a few days.

Dear Dorothy: Here's a tip for those who cherish crystal. I like to wash my crystal glasses by hand. But I always slip them sideways into the hot water — and never a problem with clipping or clouding. — Paula Grossenr

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Sandra Elaine Darr — Russel P. Visser

Mr. and Mrs. Russel P. Visser

Recently returned from a camping honeymoon in Colorado and New Mexico are Sandra Elaine Darr and Russel Paul Visser, newlyweds of June 12.

Married in First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, Sandra is the daughter of the Robert Darr, Hoffman Estates, and Russel is the son of the Paul M. Vissers, Barrington.

For the 2 p.m. double ring service Sandra made her own lace-trimmed gown and her veil which was also trimmed in lace and daisies. She carried white daisies, baby's breath and stephanotis.

In a home sewn blue dotted Swiss was Sandra's sister, Sue, maid of honor, and in pink and yellow were the bridesmaids, the groom's sister, Barbara Pohlman, and Anita Weber, Arlington Heights. They carried yellow and white daisies.

THE GROOM'S brother-in-law, Steven Pohlman, was best man, and groomsmen were his brother, Phil of Kansas City, Mo., and Ted Trestik, Crystal Lake. Scott Harmon, Aurora, Charlie Hohmeier, Champaign, and the bride's brother, Michael, were ushers.

A champagne reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

A '75 graduate of Hoffman Estates High, Sandra is employed in the office of a Hoffman Estates physician. A '73 graduate of Barrington High, Russel studied at the University of Illinois and is now with Medcoa Corp., Hoffman Estates.

Karen Briscoe — Dr. Christensen

Dr. and Mrs. Gary M. Christensen are making their home in Orlando, Fla., where the bridegroom of June 12 is stationed at the Naval Regional Medical Training Center. He was recently commissioned a Lieutenant in the U.S. Navy upon graduation from the University of Illinois School of Dentistry.

He and his bride, the former Karen Elizabeth Briscoe of Arlington Heights, exchanged vows at 5 p.m. in the First United Methodist Church of Arlington. They greeted 140 guests at Allgauer's Fireside, where dancing followed dinner, and then left on a two-week honeymoon to Hawaii.

The bride's parents are the Curtis L. Briscoes, and the groom's are Dr. and Mrs. Eldis M. Christensen of Western Springs.

Karen wore a white sheer bridal gown accented with Schiffli embroidery and Venise lace complemented by a floor-length veil attached to a Camelot lace headpiece. Her bouquet was of white roses and ivy.

SHE HAD FOUR attendants, all wearing two-toned gowns featuring an ivory chiffon bodice and green-printed ivory voile skirt. They wore matching print picture hats and carried parasols that were trimmed with yellow daisies, carnations, mums and baby's breath.

Bonnie Shanley, Palatine, Karen's sister, was matron of honor, with Karen Jerrick, the groom's sister and Dianne Cullotta, both of Palatine, and April Krug, Arlington Heights, as bridesmaids.

Serving as best man was Joseph Lattal Jr., Westmont, and as groomsmen Roger Jerrick, Gary's brother-in-law, and the couple's brothers, Blair Briscoe and Greg Christensen.

A '70 graduate of Arlington High School, the bride then attended the University of Iowa and Ravenswood Hospital Medical Center. She was a nurse at Ravenswood until her marriage.

Jeannie Kuhns — Jerry W. McLaughlin

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry McLaughlin

Christ the King Church in Missoula, Mont., was the site of the wedding of Jeannie Kuhns of Prospect Heights and Jerry W. McLaughlin of Lewis-town, Mont. Her parents are the William R. Kuhns and his are the Eugene McLaughlins.

The bride, a graduate of Hersey High School, and the groom have been attending the University of Montana in Missoula. They are now living in Prospect Heights where the groom is self-employed.

For the June 19 ceremony Jeannie made a white handmade cotton dress with a panel of lace down the front and a wide flounce at the bottom. She carried a bouquet of wild flowers.

SARA KUHN'S WAS her sister's maid of honor, wearing a yellow gown and carrying a bouquet of wild flowers. Mike McKenna, Bozeman, Mont., served as best man and the bride's brothers, Roger and David, ushered.

A reception followed in the church hall.

Elizabeth Martin — John Hutchens

Mrs. John P. Hutchens

Elizabeth Anne Martin and John Pate Hutchens were married June 19 in the First Baptist Church, Winston-Salem, N.C. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. C. Pate Hutchens of Arlington Heights, and the bride is the daughter of Mrs. John Bennett Martin of Orlando, Fla., and the late Mr. Martin.

The new Mrs. Hutchens is a graduate of the University of North Carolina Greensboro, and has been an elementary teacher in Winston-Salem. Her husband is a graduate of Indiana University, with a graduate degree from the University of Illinois. He is employed as a musician in Urbana, Ill., where the couple is living.

THE BRIDE, wearing a gown of silk organza trimmed in Venise lace and an elbow-length veil, was attended by Cynthia Shore of Winston-Salem, a cousin. Her bridesmaids were Mrs. Joseph Butler Jr., Orange Park, Fla., and Constance Breach, Homewood, the groom's cousin. They wore navy cotton dresses with white ruffles. The bride's bouquet was white roses and carnations, and the attendants carried nosegays of daisies.

The groom's father served as best man, with the groom's cousins, F. Thomas Hahn, Orlando; William Breach, Homewood, and Patrick Hutchens, Lake Worth, Fla., as ushers.

A reception followed at Tanglewood Golf club.

The couple plans a honeymoon to Germany later this summer.

THE WILLIAMSBURG WING.

A place of pride for those in need of nursing care.

When Americana created the Williamsburg Wing, they did it to add a further dimension to health care: elegance.

The Williamsburg Wing is so beautiful it's hard to believe it's in a health care center. But it is. It's special, even spectacular, but it is unquestionably a part of a health care center.

In the Williamsburg Wing, patients receive fine food served in a private dining room. Each room is magnificently decorated and furnished. The sitting room is pleasantly opulent. All over, the atmosphere is quietly, devotedly luxurious.

THE WILLIAMSBURG WING—for people who are accustomed to more. The Williamsburg Wing is not for everyone. It is for those with an appreciation of more tasteful living. It provides the best of two worlds—privacy, elegance and the special services of its staff—and the ready availability of the professional and therapeutic services of the adjoining Americana Healthcare Center.

Call us for an appointment to visit and inspect our accommodations, services and professional staff.

Ask Andy

Baseball had beginning in Britain

Andy sends the Encyclopedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Buddy Fischer, 10, of Venta, Ore., for his question: HOW DID BASEBALL BEGIN?

The "modern era" of baseball began in the year 1900. Two major leagues had been formed, and the rules of the game were solidly established. The origins of baseball, however, go back much further than this. Exactly when and where the game came into being is a question that really has no answer. And even though Russia claimed in 1962 that baseball is an old Russian game, most people feel that it is strictly American.

It is pretty well agreed that the basic ingredients of baseball originated in England several hundred years ago. In the early 1600s a popular game in England was stoolball. In this game a three-legged milking stool was turned upside down and a pitcher threw a ball at it. The batter had to defend the stool with a stick or his hands. The winner was the batter who scored the most hits before the pitcher hit the stool. This game possibly gave rise to the popular English games of cricket and rounders.

Rounders is probably more closely related to baseball than cricket and is played with a ball, bat and bases. The bases were stakes set in the ground, and outs were recorded by hitting the base runner with the ball. This was called "plugging" the runner. Rounders was very popular with the American Colonists who played the game under many different names, including base ball.

Many people credit Abner Doubleday with originating the modern version of baseball in Cooperstown, N.Y., in 1839. As time passed enthusiasm for baseball grew, and by the late 1800s it had attained the stature of a national professional sport. However, as its popularity expanded, so did the question regarding its origin. Many people felt that in spite of what Doubleday had done, the game was definitely a form of rounders.

In 1907 a commission was formed by major league officials to determine the origin of the game. After much research and many interviews the commission reported in 1908 that baseball was a distinctly American sport and had no connection with rounders or any other foreign sport. The commission also declared that the first rules for playing baseball, according to all evidence obtained, were those devised by Abner Doubleday.

Alexander Cartwright is often called the father of organized baseball. In 1843 he started a club called the "Knickerbocker Base Ball Club of New York." The first organization of its kind, its sole purpose was to play baseball. When Cartwright organized his club he also wrote a set of baseball rules which were added to in 1848 and 1854. These rules did much to make baseball the game it is today.

The earliest recorded date of a baseball game played under the Cartwright rules was on June 19, 1846. The Knickerbocker Club was defeated by the "New York Nine" in a four-inning game. The final score was a whopping 23 to 1.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Jamie Johnson, 10, of Highland Park, N.Y., for this question: DO THEY HAVE NEWSPAPERS IN BRAILLE FOR BLIND PEOPLE?

Blind persons can read and write by using a system called braille, invented by a blind Frenchman, Louis Braille, during the 1820s. The system involves raised dots which stand for letters and numbers. Although newspapers are not published in braille, occasionally special editions are available to blind people by means of tapes, cassettes and records. The Reader's Digest is published in braille, but many popular magazines and periodicals are recorded to be listened to.

The American Printing House for the Blind, with headquarters in Louisville, Ky., provides about one-half of the world's press-printed braille literature. Also produced are records and books printed with large type for the partially sighted. Public donations and materials sold at reduced prices help keep the costs of this nonprofit organization to a minimum. Many people, including actors and actresses, donate their time to narrate much of the material that is typed or recorded. Blind persons are eligible to receive these materials free of charge.

High stakes, skillful bid

Oswald: "How about some examples of strategic bidding?"

Jim: "I have a good example right here. The game was team-of-four with international match-point scoring. South was pretty sure that he could wrap up seven hearts. His problem was to get to play hearts when his not vulnerable opponents held the spade suit."

Oswald: "His bid of just five hearts was a calculated risk. He would have looked mighty silly if East-West had let him play there."

Jim: "Strangely enough, five hearts making seven would have been a score of 710. At the other table North and South slam-banged into seven hearts and East-West took the save at seven spades. The defense collected just four tricks to score a mere 700."

Oswald: "I don't like to take away credit from South's virtuoso bidding performance, but I feel that if East had been really alert he would still have bid seven spades rather than risk letting his opponents score their vulnerable grand slam."

Jim: "I agree but you can't quarrel with success."

The 1976 Democratic National Convention will now come to order!

The way we see it

Dems could end disenchantment

The first leg of the nation's quadrennial political extravaganza, the Democratic National Convention, begins today in New York City. The Republican convention will follow next month.

While the conventions nearly were upstaged by the marathon primary season, the Democrats this week and the Republicans later will showcase their strengths and weaknesses before the nation.

For a change, the Democrats appear relatively tranquil. Instead of the chaotic, brokered convention some political observers predicted a few months ago, the field has been narrowed to one man, ex-Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

Carter will call many of the shots on party platform decisions and future party rules. He also will select a running mate and the party will receive a lot of media attention.

All in all, the comparison between the Carter nomination and the still up-for-grabs situation in the Republican Party is startling.

While Carter will have a national springboard for his general election campaign, President Gerald R. Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan are still struggling for delegates.

Compared to the riots in Chicago in 1968 and the tumultuous internal quarreling in 1972, when Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley was ousted, this year's convention should be much calmer.

The Republicans, however, seem almost bent on self-destruction. Instead of nominating their incumbent president, without much furor the minority party seems ready to go to Kansas City next month with Ford so seriously challenged in his own party as to damage his stature as president.

Carter's overwhelming victory and Reagan's strong challenge seem to point to a different mood in this country. The two non-Washington politicians have made much about the problems in the nation's capital, and many voters have responded.

While both men practice politics in the traditional manner, they have touched a sensitive nerve in criticizing the way government has come to take over a major portion of each citizen's income.

The Democrats seem ready to nominate a man who says he will do something about this trend.

Both parties, as they set about the task of selecting candidates and developing campaign platforms, seem aware of this national mood.

Polls have reflected the growing disenchantment with government, and unless the political parties wake up to this reality, they can expect to be viewed with increasing skepticism.

Convention hoopla and merry-making should not deflect serious attempts to develop platforms that will help build the credibility of the two parties.

These platforms should be meaningful guides for the candidates not only through the general election campaign, but also after the winner takes office.

A disenchantment with politics and government that has been building for years cannot be erased overnight, but the first steps must be taken, and this week's convention in New York seems as good a place as any to start.

Election donation law needs tighter control

"Children, we are going to raise your allowance this week by $1,000.05 each."

"Gee, folks, that's great. Now Sally can get her new stereo; Jerry can get his new motorbike and I can make a down payment on that new car..."

"Now wait just a minute here. We're not through. You see, we are going to have to make a withdrawal from your increase for something very necessary."

"What's that?"

"Well, we've already made our $1,000 contribution to our favorite candidate for President and since we would like to contribute more, we feel you children would be glad to lend your name and money to this worthy cause."

"But why take our allowance? Just give the money and use our names."

"Well, it's not that easy. You see, the Federal Election Commission says it has to be your money. And let's face it, this is your money. Kinda like income tax, you know?"

Something like this conversation has been taking place across the country the last several months and has caused the Federal Election Commission to draft more comprehensive wording on how the donations from a family may be made.

Human nature being what it is, it would be difficult to enforce such regulations no matter what wording is used. What is needed is a more complete donation law that tightens such loopholes, but still gives candidates needed funds to run a viable campaign.

New York good place to meet

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the Democratic Party decided last year to come to New York for its 1976 national convention, politicians and pundits alike were ready with explanations.

Some said the party wanted to help the loyal Democratic wheelhorses here to demonstrate their city was not dying. Some said the Democrats wanted to be where the media was concentrated and 41 electoral votes would be on the line in November.

Others said the party simply got stuck with New York when Chicago did not seek the convention, Los Angeles was eliminated by the rude behavior of California's governor and no one else had the facilities.

Whatever the fact is that the Democrats are here and a very good reason for holding a national political convention in this city is all around them. The place itself is the message to the 5,000 very special Americans who are here to nominate a candidate for President.

This is the place where the incredible economic muscle of the United States can be seen in the mighty skyscrapers, the pulse of trade and finance and the glitter of culture and entertainment. This is the city that has gathered together more people, more money, more creativity and more power than any other on the continent. It sums up what Americans have accomplished in the last 200 years.

It also is the place where the symptoms of two centuries of abuse to both people and objects can be most clearly seen in this country. In the streets below the breathtaking stone and glass buildings, the garbage lies uncollected. Below ground, garish graffiti-smearred trains roar through grimy and peeling subway stations.

On the plaza in front of the shining new structure where the convention is being held an old black woman, her life's belongings stuffed in two shopping bags sprawled last week — her home until the authorities sealed off the area to remove such rude signs of pain that lives alongside the gloss and glamour.

New York is not America, and as a people, we have always distrusted, even hated, great cities. Some, reflecting this, said during the default crisis of last fall the country could live without it. But it would not be the same nation that registers 100 million automobiles for the world's greatest network of highways, that provides jobs for 80 million men and women and that spent more than $300 billion to govern itself and produced more than $1 trillion in goods and services last year.

Without the great cities, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Atlanta and Los Angeles as well as the model for them all, New York, the United States would be a poorer place for everyone. No quiet and clean suburb can live without them. No small town or farm can prosper if they die.

The Democrats are here to give their nomination to a countryman — a native and still resident of a tiny town in a region that only now is beginning to realize the growth and trouble that technology and industrialization can bring to a people who have depended primarily on the land to sustain them.

If only to show Jimmy Carter and the people who have come here to nominate him what a glorious human accomplishment this city is, and in what grave danger it stands, it is good that the Democratic national convention is in New York.

Dick West's lighter side

The simple handbook on how to pick a running mate

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Much has been written about Jimmy Carter's interviews with prospective vice presidential running mates.

Picking a running mate is always a sticky decision for prospective presidential nominees. Carter's deliberations started me to thinking that maybe the government should publish an instruction booklet on the subject.

One of the things that governments of both communist and capitalist countries have in common is the ability to produce clear, incisive directions for helping people cope with life's complexities.

According to a recent news item from Moscow, three — count 'em! — three Russian technological institutes contributed to the preparation of an instruction booklet on Soviet raincoats.

For best results, the directions advised, "wear it on wet or rainy days."

U.S. intelligence analysts view the raincoat manual as further evidence that the Soviet Union is catching up with the western world in technological know-how.

That America still retains the lead, however, can be seen in a recent Labor Department pamphlet on farm safety. It cautioned cattlemen to "be careful that you do not fall into the manure pits."

Fortunately, there are no manure pits in Madison Square Garden where the Democratic vice presidential candidate will be nominated this week.

There are, however, numerous pitfalls that presidential nominees need to avoid in picking running mates. I'm sure a government booklet along the lines of the Soviet raincoat directions and the U.S. farm safety pamphlet would be most helpful.

Here are a few pointers that possibly should be included:

- Make certain the person you select as a running mate is still alive.
- It is always embarrassing and gets the campaign off to a bad start if it turns out the vice presidential nominee has been dead for several years.

You can try to blame it on "poor staff work" but it nevertheless raises doubts in the minds of the voters as to whether you pay enough attention to details.

A good idea is to have everyone under consideration take a blood test to confirm they are extant.

- Pick a running mate from your own party if possible.

Having a Republican vice presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket, or vice versa, can be confusing to the voters, who are confused enough already.

If no suitable nominee from your own party can be found, try lining up one who is either nonpartisan or undecided.

- Choose a running mate you can stand behind 1,000 per cent after you realize you made a mistake in picking him.

That kind of backing makes it easier for you to drop him and pick someone else.

"Hey Dad? What's the name of that company you're Chairman of ....?"

Each plan has pros, cons

No obvious solution for pension

Dear Mr. Rosefsky: My employer is giving me the choice of whether I participate in his pension plan or not. If I go with him, he'll contribute roughly $1,000 per year to my ultimate pension benefits, and I can voluntarily put in more if I want to.

If I don't go along with him, is it true I can start an individual retirement account (IRA) on my own behalf? Or am I prevented from doing so because my employer has his own plan? If it is true that I can start my own IRA plan, would it be better for me to do so, or to go along with my employer's plan?

Only a crystal ball can tell for sure. But first things first: Yes, you can establish an IRA plan, even if your employer sponsors his own pension plan, as long as you don't participate in it. Many workers who are now covered by a plan at work may want to make inquiry at their personnel office to determine if they must participate, or if they can drop out of the plan and start their own, should they wish to.

The pros and cons of the question are a bit muddy, unfortunately. The more choices we have, the more thinking and studying we have to do. One possible drawback to your employer's plan is that if you leave his employ, you may forfeit some of what he has contributed to your pension account. If you do change jobs, and both your current employer and your new employer are willing, you can roll over your accumulated benefits from the old plan into the new plan through an IRA program at the time. That's the "portability" of pensions that was built into the pension reform law.

But since you don't know if or when you might leave, or where you might go, there's an element of chance in-

by Robert S. Rosefsky

involved. A new employer might not have a plan that will allow such roll-overs, and you won't know till you've quit your present job or are about to.

Another drawback is the amount that will be going into your plan. An IRA allows you to contribute up to 15 per cent of your earned income, with an annual maximum of $1,500 per person. If your current earnings are, say, $10,000, you could, if you wanted to, put as much as $1,500 into your own IRA plan. That compares with the $1,000 that your employer is contributing.

In your case, you say that you can make additional volunteer contributions. That will allow you to equalize the choices somewhat. But many plans do not allow voluntary contributions, so the difference must be weighed more carefully.

On the other side of the coin: Will the employer's contributions rise as your salary rises? If so, he may end up putting in far more than you could put into your own IRA. Yet there has been talk that the IRA limit could be raised from its current $1,500 level in the not-too-distant future. See what I mean about the need for a crystal ball?

Your employer's plan may offer other advantages that IRA doesn't now have, such as tax breaks on lump-sum distributions and shelter from estate taxes. Get a thorough rundown on all of these various factors before you decide. See your personnel office, and don't stop asking questions until you're satisfied.

U.S. no longer richest world power

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A survey published by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development — a club of the 24 richest nations in the Western world — may shatter some illusions about the United States in its 200th year.

In terms of per capita income, the United States is no longer No. 1 but No. 3, behind Switzerland and Sweden and, if some trends continue, may soon become fifth, behind Canada and Iceland.

According to the OECD, per capita income in the United States in 1975 was $6,600, behind Switzerland's $6,970 and Sweden's $6,880.

In some categories, such as infant mortality, the United States is practically a developing country. The United States ranks 20th, with only Turkey, Portugal, Italy and Ireland among the OECD states having a higher rate of infant deaths during the first year of life.

However, the United States is uncontestedly the first in some categories — the per capita number of television sets and telephones and the highest consumption of animal protein.

They could have jived all night

ALICE THOMSEN-USTER didn't let her walker stop her from having a good time at the "seniors prom." She was one of 50 senior citizens who jived to the beat of modern drums Saturday.

The "seniors" came out to show their stuff Saturday at the discotheque "senior prom."

A.K. McKlutz's restaurant discotheque lounge in Arlington Heights opened early that afternoon to give the senior citizens the chance to catch up on the new dances and 50 seniors did their best.

They jived to the bump, the bus-stop, and the Special K, and the twist was included for those who preferred that "oldie."

Crutches and bad knees didn't keep the spirited folks from dancing. When the record hit and the call went out for dancers, they mobbed the floor, all adapting the newest dance to their speed.

STEVEN SIMON, who helped organize the event, said, "We thought this would be a great activity for nursing homes. It gets them out."

He said the restaurant decided to call it the "senior prom" because "it's sort of like a prom. They're eating and they're dancing."

Vivian Morin from the Normandy House in Niles said she looked forward to the outing because "I've never been to a discotheque before. I wanted to see what it was — what the music was. The music is very nice."

Alice Thomsen-Uster of the Northbrook Nursing Home didn't let her crutch keep her off the dance floor. She said she "loves the music" and is always willing to give something new "my best try."

JOHN SCHEELER of the Northbrook home said he came because he likes going out to eat. But once the music started, he was one of the first to dance. Later he admitted it was "a bit difficult" to learn the dances but he was glad he tried.

When the call for requests came from the disc jockey Bob Karl, the crowd cried out for a polka. Unfortunately a polka hasn't made the top 10 lately so a compromise was reached.

"We'll do a couple of slow ones from way back when when you used to touch each other," Karl said.

As the afternoon came to a close, the crowd reluctantly prepared to leave.

As one woman said, "This was the best activity we've had in three years. I hope we can come back again."

60 churches to begin 2-week crusade July 17

Representatives from more than 60 churches are scheduled to meet for a two-week crusade beginning July 17 at the Des Plaines Camp Ground on Algonquin Road east of River Road in Des Plaines.

Churches of the Northwest suburbs participating in the 11th annual Chicago Camp Meeting Crusade are the Des Plaines Bible Church, the Evangelical Free Church, Meadows Baptist Church and Palatine Bible Church.

The Crusade will open at 7:30 p.m. July 17 with a patriotic rally featuring Dave Breese of Hillsboro, Kan., president of Christian Destiny Inc. The Living Hope singers of Arlington Heights will provide music and the young persons will present an historical sketch.

Breese will be the speaker for the first week of the crusade. He is an author, lecturer, radio broadcaster and evangelist.

From July 21-Aug. 1 S. Franklin Logsdon of Largo, Fla., will be the guest Bible teacher. He formerly served as pastor of the Moody Church of Chicago and is presently engaged in Bible conference work.

Guest choirs and musicians from the Chicago area will be featured each night. Ralph and Mary Lou Colburn of Moody Bible Institute are coordinating the musical program.

Week night services begin at 7:30 p.m. and at 9 p.m. Sunday nights. There will be men's breakfasts Saturday, July 24 and 31 at 8 a.m. and women's luncheons July 23 and 30, at 12:30 p.m. Meals will be in the dining room at the camp and reservations may be made by writing the crusade headquarters, 646 S. State St., Chicago, 60605, or by calling 922-1462.

Youth activities are planned Tuesday nights and Saturday afternoons.

Kids carnival kits available from group

Carnival kits for children who want to stage a backyard carnival to benefit the fight against muscular dystrophy are available by writing the Muscular Dystrophy Assn. 332 S. Michigan Ave., Suite 1522, Chicago 60604.

Children who send carnival proceeds to the association will receive a free pass to the Old Chicago amusement park in Bolingbrook for Sept. 11 and one ticket to carnival against dystrophy night at White Sox Park on Sept. 22.

Last year, 40,078 backyard carnivals raised $1.4 million nationally for the Muscular Dystrophy Assn.

Thoughts on a Mattress

For over three years our little mattress factory has been doing an ever increasing business by attracting the astute inquisitive customer with the intelligence and experience to recognize the difference between some so called "discount" price delusion and a top quality product at a low price.

And we would like to clarify one point - this a factory not a "Factory Outlet" or "Factory Closeout Mart" or some other misrepresentation of just another retail store - we actually make our mattresses and box springs right here before your very eyes.

Once in awhile we do get a customer who says, "That's not cheap. I can buy one cheaper at so and so's."

The funny thing is that nine out of ten of these customers, after shopping all the "cheap" mattresses in the area, come back and buy ours.

So it gives us a lot of satisfaction to know that there is still a place in this economy of ours for a small company that wants to produce a quality piece of merchandise. And that we try to let our customers know we appreciate the fact that they come in to see us. It is really surprising how many have taken their time to call and even write to thank us just because our delivery men were so courteous and helpful when we delivered our merchandise.

making all the moves. "The key to that was the ability he acquired to accept criticism."

"I'm always asking for criticism because I can learn from that," he said. "Most boys aren't like that. They have a different attitude. I always seek help from the other jockeys."

"I'm an athlete," he said. "This is a dangerous sport, more dangerous than race car driving."

But it is a profession that pays well. A jockey receives 10 per cent of the owner's purse and once he starts getting the good horses, the money comes along with them.

There is more to it, however, for Heier.

"I ENJOY THE thrill of being out there," he said. "I never rode anything that could run before, but now I'm getting more good horses. You have to get along with the horse and the idea is to get the horse to relax and to trust you."

"I plan to be quite a good jockey, famous in my time," he said. "My attitude helps. I've had the best boys on the grounds tell me that. I work hard and that's what lets me know I'll make it."

Heier said the big bucks aren't here yet, but he has seen signs indicating that success is not far away.

State net title to Paul Wei

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

If Paul Wei keeps improving, he may wish the high school tennis season started about seven months early.

Wei, who will be a senior at Arlington High School this fall, won the Illinois state boys 16-and-under state championship Saturday at the Holiday Tennis Club in Harvey.

He did it by whipping Bob Frei of Winnetka, who had trimmed Wei in the third-place match of the state high school tournament in May.

Frei, from New Trier East High School, had beaten Wei twice before this year.

In Saturday's final round, though, Wei dropped the first set 7-5 then scrambled back to win the next two sets 6-4, 6-4 and take the title.

Wei, who also paired with former Arlington teammate John Wallner for the boys 18-and-under state doubles championship will be playing in a week-long tournament in St. Louis beginning today.

"The tournament in St. Louis will help determine national rankings," Wei said. "I've been playing in tournaments all summer, nearly one a week."

Wei finished third at the Western Closed championships in Indianapolis earlier this summer. He trailed only Highland Park's Matt Horvich and Hinsdale Central's Ted Staren, the singles finalists of the Illinois state tournament.

With his third place finish Wei earned a ticket to the national tournament in Kalamazoo, Mich. from July 31 to Aug. 6.

Wei leveled Park Forest's Fred Park and Hazelcrest's Mike Martin in straight sets to reach the state junior finals.

"I've improved a lot since the state tournament," Wei said. "I'm a lot quicker and I've been able to run down shots that I didn't think I could get."

"I think the heat has really helped me loosen up."

"I really think I can keep improving right up until the tennis season starts next year."

Zeroes bombard Cubs, White Sox

From Herald Wire Services

Chicago's baseball teams were served goose eggs for lunch Sunday as both went down to shutout defeats. The White Sox were handcuffed to three hits by New York Yankee Ed Figueroa, 5-0, while the Cubs were limited to just a pair of singles by gangling San Francisco righthander Ed Halicki, 2-0.

Oscar Gamble's towering two-run homer was all the Yanks needed to support Figueroa's gem before a New York Jacket Day crowd of 53,160. Gamble's homer, his eighth, came in the second inning with Graig Nettles on first via a leadoff walk and helped New York to a 2-0 lead.

It was one of the longest home runs every hit in Yankee Stadium, landing in the last few rows of the right field bleachers. No one has ever hit a fair ball out of Yankee Stadium.

Figueroa allowed only three singles — a one-out hit by Ralph Garr in the fourth, Jorge Orta's sixth-inning single and a ninth-inning single by Pat Kelly. He walked two and struck out four in raising his record to 10-6 and recording his third shutout of the season.

The Yankees added a run in the third when Thurman Munson walked, Chris Chambliss doubled and Carlos May hit a sacrifice fly. Mickey Rivers accounted for their final two runs with a two-run double. Bart Johnson, 7-8, suffered the loss.

Halicki, meanwhile, who no-hit the Mets last year, gave up a leadoff single up the middle to Jose Cardenal in the seventh inning. Until then, the only Cub to reach base was Pete LaCock, who walked in the second and fifth innings. Steve Swisher got the other Cub hit, a single in the eighth. It was the 25-year-old righthander's eighth victory against 11 losses.

Gary Matthews gave Halicki the only run he needed with a solo homer in the first and the Giants tallied an insurance run in the eighth when Darrell Evans singled home Marty Perez. Perez had singled, moved to second on an error and to third on a flyout by Matthews.

Steve Stone suffered his first loss against one victory. He allowed five hits in six innings. Both the Cubs and White Sox will enjoy a much-needed, three-day vacation during the All-Star break. Swisher of the Cubs and Rich Gossage of the White Sox will play in the classic Tuesday night in Philadelphia.

Murder isn't an Olympic event

To begin with, an Olympic Games is just a track meet. It's not an ideology, a big-power summit meeting. It has never, to my knowledge, solved any political question, rearranged the history of the world, or wrought any great social changes. It's simply a proving ground to see who can run the fastest, throw the farthest, hit the hardest, jump the highest, swim the longest, or row the quickest.

No one asks you your political affiliation. All you have to meet is an Olympic athletic standard which was not set by Karl Marx or Hegel or Tom Paine or Jefferson or Napoleon. No one cares how you vote.

Why and when it became a political forum is hard to answer. Hitler made it a showcase for Nazism in 1936. But it didn't help him in World War II.

When the Russians entered the Games in 1952, the competition underwent a subtle change. A medal count was instituted almost for the first time. A boy was no longer running for a medal, he was running for a movement.

Mexico City in 1968 was the first one threatened with organized unrest. The students' threats ended in a brutal burst of military gunfire at the Plaza of the Three Cultures on the eve of the opening ceremonies. Flatfaced, impassive soldiers lined the route to the stadium along the Avenue of the Insurgentes the rest of the time and kept the peace.

Clenched-fist salutes on the victory stand by two black sprinters protesting injustices in the ghettos of America electrified the world, made page one all over the continents and dominated the evening TV news. The lesson was not lost on terrorist groups. Olympic athletes replaced archdukes and crown princes as targets for political assassination. Munich was supposed to have been the "peace and

Taiwan excluded from Olympics

MONTREAL — The International Olympic Committee, which over the years has always compromised when faced with a major decision, did it again Sunday on the matter of the Republic of China's participation in the Montreal Games, thus paving the way for politicians to take charge of the 80-year-old movement.

The IOC, after almost five days of non-stop talk, said it would recommend to the Council meeting later this week that Taiwan be excluded from the Games, "so that the Games can go on."

Lawrence S. Ping, chief of the Republic of China delegation, said, "The IOC president (Lord Killarin) has announced we have lost the battle. He completely gave in to terms laid down by the Canadian government."

"He is going to recommend to the council session we do not take part. We shall stay at the Games despite this loss of all Olympic ideals." But he said the delegation would not take part. The Canadian government, which recognizes the Peking regime of the People's Republic of China, refused to permit entry of a team under the name and flag of the Republic of China, insisting that it be changed to Taiwan. By its decision the IOC invited the politicians to take charge of the movement.

Palmer, Carner in Open playoff

SPRINGFIELD, Pa. — Sandra Palmer, the defending champion, blew a two-stroke lead with bogeys on the first three holes Sunday, then rallied to catch JoAnne Carner and force an 18-hole playoff Monday for the U.S. Women's Open Golf championship.

Palmer sank a 20-foot birdie putt on the 17th green and then made a difficult, downhill five-footer for par on 18 for a final round 75, four over par, while Carner stood just off the green watching her.

Carner had finished moments earlier in the next to last group of the day with a birdie on her own 17 and also a good, par-saving shot on 18, for a 73. That left them tied at 292, eight over par, to set up the first playoff in this women's national championship since Mickey Wright defeated Ruth Jessen in 1964.

It will be a battle between the longest hitter on the tour — the powerful, 37-year-old Carner, who won this championship by seven strokes in 1971, and the short-hitting, 35-year-old, 5-foot-1 Palmer, who won by four strokes last year. Jane Blalock finished third at 256 with a closing 75, her chances for the title killed when she needed three shots to get out of a bunker at the 16th hole.

Almost lost in the finish was the play of Judy Rankin, who was out of the contention from the start of this tournament when she opened with a 79 but hung on well enough to finish with a 74-playing the final 15 holes at even par after opening with three bogeys — that left her tied with five others for 14th place and earned her $1,229 and made her the first woman golfer ever to win $100,000 in a single season. Rankin's earnings for 1976 now stand at $100,614.

Lister triumphs in Quad Cities

COAL VALLEY, Ill. — John Lister won the $100,000 Quad Cities Open Sunday by firing a final round 67, four-under-par, to finish at 268, two strokes ahead of Fuzzy Zoeller. Lister, the 29-year-old New Zealander, held a one-stroke lead over Zoeller and a two-stroke edge over Rex Caldwell going into the last round. The victory was Lister's first since joining the pro tour in 1971. The $20,000 first prize was his biggest payday. He won on rounds of 68, 68, 65 and 67 to finish 16 under par.

Caldwell finished third with a 69 and four round total of 272. Lister went out in 33 with two birdies and seven pars, then came in on the last nine holes with a 34, which included an eagle on the 500-yard, par-five 13th where he sank a 12-foot putt.

It was another hot, steamy day with winds of 15 to 20 miles per hour and gusts of 25 to 30 mph. The fairways on the 6,305-yard Oakwood Country Club course were dry and hard, but did not bother Lister.

"I'm not ill at ease on the hardest fairways," Lister said. "They are a lot like the ones in New Zealand." Lister became the first foreign player to win on the PGA tour this year.

Zoeller, the 24-year-old Hoosier who shot a three-under-par 68, said, "I went out charging, but ran into some tough luck on the first hole, which I had hoped to birdie." Zoeller settled for a par. But he sank putts of 10 feet on the 15th, 15 feet on the 16th and nine feet on the 18th for birdies on each to help him nose out Caldwell.

All-Star game upstaged by talks

PHILADELPHIA — A classic confrontation between baseball's two most-talked about pitchers is expected to highlight the 47th major league All-Star Game at Veterans Stadium Tuesday night, but a much more important meeting will take place Monday behind closed doors.

While more than 60,000 fans, including President Ford, get ready to descend on this Bicentennial city for Tuesday night's showdown between the American and National Leagues, player representatives and owners from the 24 clubs will be meeting here Monday to try once again to reach accord on the basic agreement.

The owners and players have met only sporadically since the season opened and are still considered to be far apart on the basic issues. The basic agreement expired last Dec. 31 but since that time the era of the free agent has been born and, unless an agreement on a new contract can be reached to govern the sport in the future, a great deal of havoc could be created.

Right now, there are 47 unsigned players in the two leagues, including several who will be playing in the All-Star Game, who will become free agents at the end of the season.

He wins Grand Slam of Tennis

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. — Romanian Ilie Nastase defeated Spain's Manuel Orantes, 6-4, 6-3, Sunday to win the $75,000 first prize in the first Grand Slam of Tennis, American Jimmy Connors, subbing for ailing Bjorn Borg, took 1975 Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe in the consolation match, 6-4, 7-6.

Orantes collected $10,000 for second place. Connors received $20,000 for third and Ashe won $15,000.

Serving inconsistently at times, Nastase combined five aces against two double faults in downing Orantes, the 1975 U.S. Open champion. His power serve was effective against Orantes' finesse playing.

In the second set, Nastase broke service in the fourth game to jump to a 3-1 lead in games. Orantes fought back with aces in the sixth and eighth games, but he failed to overcome Nastase's determined efforts.

Showing no signs of fatigue from his recent globe-trotting travel schedule, Nastase double faulted on his first service in the seventh game of the second set, but immediately came back with a service ace.

Both players were troubled by strong winds in the second set, which forced them to make adjustments in their serves and volleys.

And in other sports news...

Little known Vladimir Trofimenko set a national pole vault record of 18 feet, 3 1/4 inches Sunday and may be a late addition to the Soviet track and field team for the Montreal Olympic Games.

John Brockington, the unhappy running back who wants to be traded to Los Angeles, Miami or Oakland, has reported to the Green Bay Packers' training camp prepared to go through the season with the Packers.

The West, down at one point by seven games in the fifth and final set, rallied behind Wimbledon champion Chris Evert and Betty Stove for a 5-4 superlative victory and a 28-27 triumph over the East in the World Team Tennis All-Star match.

MIXING IT UP under the boards will be one of the big keys to victory for the United States team against the Soviet Union. Action like this made the two teams' battle four years ago a real thriller. The U.S. hopes to reverse the outcome this time around.

Russians, look out!

Board-crashing ability is Sheppard's strength

NEW YORK (UPI) — The U.S. Olympic basketball team wanted very badly to have a University of Maryland player on its roster for the competition later this month in Montreal. The Olympians wanted guard John Lucas . . . they had to settle for forward Steve Sheppard. But being stuck with Steve isn't all that bad as Olympic Coach Dean Smith already knows. The Maryland senior's board-crashing style is ideal for the international wars that will take place under the baskets in Montreal. "I saw Steve play against Adrian Dantley in a high school all star game at Kutscher's," recalls Smith, "and that was an international type match-up right there the way they went at each other.

"He goes unnoticed except for the coaches his team plays against. He started really strong at the Olympic trials and the coaches were saying, 'Where did he come from?'"

That "Where did he come from?" query was also used at the 1968 Olympic Games to address the play of unknown junior college center Spencer Haywood, and was later used at the 1972 Games in amazement over the play of little known Illinois State guard Doug Collins.

Both Haywood and Collins parlayed their Olympic successes into sizable professional contracts with Haywood now starring for the New York Knicks and Collins a backcourt regular with the Philadelphia 76ers.

"Ever since I was a youngster I've wanted to play in the Olympics," explains Sheppard. "It's been my dream. I grew up with Tom Henderson and when he played in the 1972 Games it was like I'd be following in his footsteps. We both went to the same high school (DeWitt Clinton in New York City) and we both played for the same coach (John Wyles)."

"I was destined to be here."

Sheppard has been overshadowed at Maryland by Coach Lefty Driesell's three-guard offense featuring Lucas, Brad Davis and Mo Howard — but he has not been overlooked.

Lucas opted not to try out for the Olympic team because he, like many other top collegians, did not want to risk an injury in the Games and thus jeopardize his pro career and also because of his desire to play World Team Tennis. Lucas was the No. 1 player taken in the NBA draft and signed a five-year contract with the Houston Rockets and also a pact with Golden Gaters of WTT.

"Sheppard didn't start in his sophomore year but he always came off the bench to get his 21 points," says Smith, who coaches North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference. "He's strong . . . he plays a lot bigger than his size."

Sheppard, who averaged 14.3 points per game in his sophomore season, rose to prominence last fall in an exhibition contest against the Russians when he scored 22 points and grabbed a game-high 15 rebounds in Maryland's 100-98 overtime victory.

He went on to average 17.6 points a game last winter and ranked second on the Terps in rebounds with an average of 8.8 an outing.

"I think I made it here (Olympic team) because of my overall play," he explains. "Whatever has been called upon me to do I've done. If they want me to play guard, I'll play guard. It doesn't matter where I play, just as long as I'm in there and giving it all I've got."

More than usual pomp at 47th All-Star game

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The 47th major league All-Star game, expected to come off without a hitch despite earlier threats by the Players Association to boycott it, returns to this bi-centennial city for the first time since 1862 Tuesday night and, apropos of the historical year, baseball's oldest team — the Cincinnati Reds — will dominate the pageantry.

With America celebrating its 200th year and the National League saluting its centennial, there will be more than the usual pomp and circumstance surrounding this year's mid-summer classic. But one thing hasn't changed — the National League will still be favored to continue its dominance over the American League.

As he did a year ago, AL President Lee MacPhail has sent a directive to each AL manager ordering them not to use any of their All-Star pitchers on Sunday, so that each pitcher selected to the team will have at least two days rest prior to the contest.

This tactic failed last year when the NL won 6-3 and it has incurred the wrath of several managers, most notably Billy Martin of the Yankees, who don't believe precedence should be given to an exhibition game over a pennant race. AL owners, however, have been embarrassed by the NL's superiority in the game and are obsessed with winning it.

The National League, which has taken 12 of the last 13 contests and leads in the overall series 27-18-1, once again appears to be the stronger team. The NL will enter this year's game with a) the winningest pitcher in the major leagues, b) the major league's two leading home run hitters and c) seven-eighths of the regular starting team of the world champion Cincinnati Reds.

The Reds, whose fans were well-organized in their casting of ballots for their heroes, had five players voted to the starting unit and Reds' manager Sparky Anderson added another two as reserves to give Cincinnati more than one-fourth of the personnel on the NL squad.

Second baseman Joe Morgan, shortstop Dave Concepcion, third baseman Pete Rose, catcher Johnny Bench and outfielder George Foster were the Reds selected by the fans to the starting team. Anderson also added outfielder Ken Griffey and first baseman Tony Perez from his club as reserves.

The remainder of the starting unit for the NL will be Steve Garvey of Los Angeles at first base and Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia and Dave Kingman of New York in the outfield. Kingman is the majors' leading home run hitter with 27 through games of last Thursday. Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia, the second leading home run hitter with 22, also is a member of the NL squad.

Whereas the NL squad is a veteran one to All-Star competition — five of this year's starters also started last year's game — the AL team is composed largely of players who will be starting their first All-Star games. Outfielder Fred Lynn of Boston, third baseman George Brett of Kansas City, outfielders Ron LeFlore and Rusty Staub of Detroit and shortstop Toby Harrah of Texas all will be making their starting debuts for the AL.

First baseman Red Carew of Minnesota and catcher Thurman Munson of New York round out the AL's starting team.

Neither manager is expected to name his starting pitcher before Monday, but Anderson will have both Randy Jones of San Diego, the majors' top winner with 16, and Tom Seaver of New York, last year's NL Cy Young Award winner, well rested. Both pitchers will have had four days rest since their last start.

Darrell Johnson of Boston, who will manage the AL, would do wonders for the game's public relations if he picked rookie Mark "The Bird" Fidrych of Detroit to start. Fidrych, whose boyish enthusiasm and emotional outbursts on the field have caught the imagination of the public, has been the league's most successful pitcher to date. He also will have had three days rest prior to the All-Star contest.

Johnson has already received some heavy criticism from Baltimore's Jim Palmer, the 1975 AL Cy Young Award winner, who was angry at being left off the All-Star team by the Red Sox' skipper. Palmer called Johnson "an idiot" and blamed such oversights as the reason why the AL has fared so poorly in All-Star competition.

Also conspicuous by his absence will be Milwaukee's Hank Aaron, baseball's all-time home run king who was not selected as a reserve to the AL squad and will be missing an All-Star game for the first time in 22 years.

Always a hit with the fans ever since it was founded by sports editor Arch Ward of the Chicago Tribune in 1933 as part of the Chicago World's Fair, this year's All-Star game is expected to attract more than 60,000 spectators. That would produce the largest All-Star crowd since 1954 when 68,751 showed up at Municipal Stadium in Cleveland.

In connection with the All-Star Game the Baseball Commissioner's office will announce the winner of the game's most memorable moment and most memorable personality at a luncheon on Tuesday. The most memorable moment was selected in a nationwide vote of the media from 72 nominations and the most memorable personality (can it be anyone but Babe Ruth or Casey Stengel?) from a list of 40 nominees.

Last month, Don Larsen's perfect game in the 1956 World Series was selected as the most memorable moment in World Series play, Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak in 1941 as the most memorable moment in AL history and Aaron's record-breaking 715th homer in 1974 as the most memorable moment in NL annals.

'Big Three' fillies to run in Pucker Up Stakes race

The "Big Three" of North America's three-year-old filly division, William Haggin Perry's Reveride, Mrs. Bertram R. Firestone's Optimistic Gal and Crimmon King Farm's T. V. Vixen, stand out on a roster of 26 distaffers nominated to the 1976 running of the $50,000 added Pucker Up Stakes at Arlington Park.

The mile and one-eighth main course headliner, which will be renewed for the fifteenth time on Saturday, also has lured the likes of Golden Chance Farm's Confort Zone, Lee Wagner's Three Colors, Dazac Stable's Roger's Choice, and E. A. Cox Jr.'s Regal Gal.

Reveride, unraced as a two-year-old, has taken the sophomore filly ranks by storm. The daughter of Reviewer is undefeated in six starts, including the Cotillion Stakes and game triumphs in the Coaching Club American Oaks and the Monmouth Bi-centennial Oaks. She has earned $149,067.

Optimistic Gal, winner of seven of nine starts as a two-year-old and $356,477 in purse money, began the current campaign with a string of three triumphs. She has since posted a trio of second place efforts in the Acorn, Mother Goose, and Coaching Club American Oaks, the "filly triple crown."

T. V. Vixen, heroine of 10 out of 11 outings this year, won Saturday's Patricia A. Stakes and boosted her earnings to $220,379. The T. V. Lark filly sports seven stakes victories, including the $25,000 added Four Winds at Arlington.

Roger's Choice, winner of the Ambassador and 4-H Handicaps at Ak-Sar-Ben this summer and over $77,000 in purses, Confort Zone, second twice and third once this season behind Optimistic Gal prior to capturing a division of the Regret Stakes at Churchill Downs, and Regal Gal, a double stakes winner in the Dominion, also possess worthy credentials.

Under the training of Leroy Jolley, Optimistic Gal captured five stakes last year, including all of the important longer races at the end of the season. The daughter of Sir Ivor tallied in the Frizette, Matron, Selima, Adirondack and Alcibiades Stakes.

Celebrities to play golf for charity

Channel 7 Anchorman Joel Daly, WCFL "Supercop" Larry Lujack and WBBM-AM Radio personality John Madigan were among the first celebrities to pledge their support and receive tee times for a Heart Fund golf tournament, July 24th at the Hilldale Country Club in Hoffman Estates.

"Proceeds from the tournament will go to benefit the Heart Assn. of North Cook County," said Club Pro Gary Glazebrook, "and the registrations are coming in at quite a clip."

"Already we've got about $2,000 in prizes for tournament contestants including a weekend for two with unlimited golf at the Playboy Club-Hotel in Lake Geneva, a complete set of ladies woods and irons, an electric golf cart, golf bag, custom stereo, dinners, liquor, record albums, auto repair work, and golf certificates. Food for the Country Club Cook-Out has also been donated," he noted.

Glazebrook applauded the local merchants who have been donating tournament prizes to help the Heart Assn. "This is really becoming a community event," he said. For the $25 entry fee a contestant gets 18 holes of golf, a chance at prizes plus the cook-out after the tournament. The fee is tax deductible and goes to fund the programs of the Heart Assn.

"Tee times are being taken up fast now and reservations are a must," Glazebrook continued. "I urge everyone to sign up now before they are all taken. The number is 675-1535. It's going to be a great tournament, the course is in tip top shape and everyone has an equal chance at lots of prizes. And who knows, you might be playing your round with Joel, Larry or John."

City to consider shared funding sidewalk policy

A new policy outlining shared costs between Des Plaines and property owners for the construction of new sidewalks is being considered by city officials.

The policy would establish for the first time guidelines for paying for new sidewalks in the city, said Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, chairman of the city streets and traffic committee. Previously, the city has made recommendations based on individual requests for sidewalk replacement.

Existing sidewalks are not covered in the new proposals. The system where Des Plaines and local homeowners share the cost of sidewalk reconstruction equally would not be affected.

THE GUIDELINES, if adopted, would establish a policy to construct sidewalks on all property adjacent to dedicated streets. He said the policy would have its greatest impact on existing neighborhoods with no sidewalks at all.

The proposal will be discussed by the city council Monday, July 19.

The city's special assessment method allows a property owner 30 days from notification by the city to sign an agreement with a private contractor to build the sidewalk. If the property owner does not comply, the city takes bids and determines the project's cost which the property owner must pay.

The proposed policy differentiates between income and nonincome-producing property. Under the guidelines, owners of all income-producing property that has not changed ownership since original development will be asked to pay the entire cost of sidewalk construction.

OWNERS OF income property that has changed ownership or of nonincome land controlled by the original owner would be assessed 70 per cent of construction cost under the plan.

Owners of nonincome property that was part of a development where the builder had the original responsibility of installing sidewalks or of residences that have changed ownership since construction will be charged 30 per cent of the total cost.

Ward said the guidelines still would allow the city council discretion in individual cases, such as where an original owner might not be able to finance the entire share of sidewalk construction. He said a common variation would occur in "double frontage" lots, where the city would pay the entire cost of a second sidewalk. Double frontage lots occur when both the front and back of a lot border on a dedicated street.

Ownership of $4,000 question of city lawsuit

Des Plaines city officials have an extra $4,000 on their hands, but they can't keep it.

The city is a party to a suit brought by the Great Atlantic and Pacific Co. in a case that involves the ownership of forty $100 bills.

Police Det. Herb Volberding said the case began in early January when Frank E. Niesen, a real estate consultant from Idaho Springs, Colo., began negotiating a deal between A&P and Sterk's Super Foods of Indiana for a food store that A&P was trying to sell at 133rd Street and Brainard Avenue in Chicago.

Niesen's negotiations were part of several the firm was making across the nation to liquidate smaller stores in the chain.

According to police reports, Niesen allegedly closed the deal for the lease for $20,000 and asked for $16,000 in checks paid directly to the firm and an additional $4,000 in cash to "take care of A&P employees." The added amount was discovered by A&P officials after the Sterk's firm called the A&P regional office at 1111 Touhy Ave., Des Plaines, and informed them of the $4,000 cash request. Volberding said.

Niesen was arrested by Des Plaines police April 30 and charged with theft by deception. When asked about the money, police said Niesen voluntarily brought them to his apartment and turned over forty $100 bills. He told police that Sterk's representatives had closed the deal for $16,000 and given him the cash for his part in the agreement.

THE CASE CAME to trial May 14 and was continued to a later date. Circuit Court Judge Martin J. Peters later dismissed the case because of an inaccuracy in the wording of the indictment. The judge, however, made no ruling on ownership of the $4,000 in cash.

With Niesen acquitted the money was returned to Des Plaines officials for holding. Volberding said the city was instructed to retain control of the money until a judge could determine its owner.

A&P then filed suit to force the city to give the firm the money, charging that it was rightfully theirs. City Atty. Charles Hug said the suit has not been contested by either Sterk's Super Foods or Niesen.

Delegates sample the Big Apple

NEW YORK — U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., Sunday received formal endorsement for the vice presidential nomination from the Illinois delegation to the Democratic National Convention. But mostly it was a day for delegates to begin finding their way around New York City amidst delays and unfamiliar surroundings.

Stevenson's endorsement came after the state delegation caucused to elect Mayor Richard J. Daley as its chairman. The state delegation's demonstration of unity was in stark contrast to the 1972 convention when Daley and the bulk of his delegates from Chicago were ousted from the gathering in a credentials battle.

The show of unity began when James Wall of Elmhurst, Carter's Illinois campaign manager, nominated Daley for the chairmanship. Wall backed George McGovern in 1972 and frequently has found himself at odds with the mayor.

Several statewide candidates, including Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, spoke about the problems in 1972 and this year's harmony indicating the strength of the Democratic party in Illinois.

AN EXPECTED fight over the election of a vice chairman evaporated when Lucille Gallagher, Arlington Heights, declined to put her name in nomination for the position. A number of women

DAVID HEIER

Little big man making sprint for success

by DON FRISKE

To be a successful jockey, you have to be small, but think big.

David Heier, an 18-year-old learning the craft at Arlington Park, fits the descriptions.

The 5-foot-3, 105-pound apprentice jockey, who is currently living with his father in Mount Prospect, has set high goals for himself.

ABOUT FIVE years ago, he was in New Orleans, where he was convinced that his future should be at the race track.

"This guy told me that jockeys drive around in big cars, flash big bills and have lots of beautiful women around them," Heier said after a race last week. "Right there and then, I said that's for me."

Heier remembered how his grandmother used to kid him about being small and he was impressed by the highly optimistic advice of his new friend.

"I knew I had to learn and start from the bottom, but I never really knew what I was in for," Heier said.

HE EXPLAINED how he was "messed over" for three years by people who owned horses, but knew little about them. His first experience was with the uncle of his new friend in California.

After spending six months there, he returned to New Orleans for a year. When the race season was over, he headed for California again.

He was hitchhiking and during the trip he somehow got separated from the others he was travelling with. "I ended up in Denver, Colo. and went straight to the nearest track," he said. "That's all I knew and I figured I could get a job. I worked there for about four or five months."

HEIER SPENT three years on the ground level as a groom and a hotwalker. After spending some time in New York and Florida, he made a deal with a man in New Orleans.

"I galloped all of his horses for free, just so I could get my license. I did this for two months earlier this year. It was hard work," Heier said.

But the deal paid off in other ways. He met Gerald Sampa, the man he feels helped him the most.

"I owe a lot to him, though he won't take any credit for it," Heier said.

"He looked after me, taught me how to relax a horse and he got on my back a lot, which upset me at the time. But I realized now that it paid off."

HEIER HAS been racing since February. He rode in three races in New Orleans and has been in the same number at Arlington Park this season.

"Jockeys are like fingerprints," he said. "Each has their own technique and style. You have to take the best points from the best jockeys and also watch their mistakes and then build your own style around that."

Heier took three years to distinguish between the people who were making false promises and those who were sincere.

"IF I HADN'T been messed over for so many years, I'd have been riding a long time ago. There were many times when I had reasons — valid reasons — to quit, but I knew that I would make it sooner or later," he said.

Even though he admits he has a long way to go, he has matured much in the past few years. During a time when many teen-agers wait for their future comes to them, Heier was

Skinner asks state corruption ranking

Which of the 50 states is the most corrupt? That's the interesting question the legislative council will spend part of the summer trying to answer. The man who asked them to find out is state Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake. Despite scandals and/or convictions involving such notables as Paul Powell, Otto Kerner, Thomas Keane and untold numbers of legislators and local officials, Skinner says he doesn't think Illinois will turn out to be the most corrupt state.

He thinks oil politics will win that honor for Texas. But he also won't discount the possibility that New Jersey, Florida, Pennsylvania or Spiro Agnew's home state of Maryland might top honors. Skinner said last week he became interested in the general subject of political corruption several years ago at a college reunion when a political science professor told him, "You have to have corruption to make the system work." To fight that kind of acceptance of graft and impropriety, Skinner said he wants to "somehow systematize" reports of political irregularities. If some precise index of corruption can be compiled, he said, voters will find it easier to assess the need for change in their state.

"At some point, you need to purge the system," he said. He said he'd like to have an index of the percentage of legislators indicted in each state, the numbers of local officials indicted and some overall impression of the seriousness of each state's problem. Skinner said he's not exactly sure how the corruption ranking might improve government.

Youth dies in cycle crash

Michael Dexter, 17, Galesburg, died Sunday of injuries sustained when he lost control of the motorcycle he was driving and slid under a pickup truck. Authorities said Dexter was not touched by the truck. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital in Galesburg after the accident Saturday night, then was transferred to St. Francis Hospital in Peoria. He died three hours after the crash.

Woman run over by her car

Teen drowns in pool

A Michigan teenager drowned Saturday in the pool beneath a spillway at Devil's Kitchen Lake near Carterville. Authorities said Mark Caratelli, 17, Madison Heights, Mich., apparently was swimming in the pool or fell into the water while fishing. He and his parents had been on a picnic at the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Preserve near this Southern Illinois town during a vacation visit with Caratelli's uncle, Ray Lukac, Herron.

Metropolitan briefs

2 policemen shot in narcotics raid

Two Chicago policemen were shot during a narcotics raid on a South Side apartment Saturday night. Two brothers were charged in the case. Officer Clarence Travis, 31, was admitted to St. Bernard Hospital with a gunshot wound in his left wrist. He was listed in good condition Sunday. Lovejoy Foster, 41, was treated for a graze wound near his left eye and released. The two were shot when they attempted to serve a search warrant at an apartment, authorities said. William Currie, 22, was charged with two counts of attempted murder, two counts of aggravated battery and possession of a gun.

Currie's brother, Joseph, 26, was charged with possession of heroin. Bond for William Currie was set at $100,000 and at $10,000 for Joseph Currie. Both cases were continued until Tuesday.

Powder Puff pilots brave storm, land in Wilmington

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Approximately 15 female pilots flying in the 25th annual Powder Puff Derby braved a major East Coast thunderstorm Sunday and landed at the Wilmington airport the last stop on their 2,916 mile coast-to-coast journey.

The rest of the 200 planes which took off Friday from Sacramento, Calif., are expected in Monterey the last day of the contest.

Three planes landed in Wilmington on Saturday.

A contest official said poor weather delayed many of the pilots Sunday morning, but by midday most were in the air, heading east.

"THEY'RE PRETTY tough gals, a little rain won't bother them," the spokeswoman said.

Most of the planes landing Sunday flew in from Parkersburg, W.Va., or Nashville.

This year's event is the last in the 47-year history of the contest, which pits the flying skills of the nation's best female pilots against one another.

The first Powder Puff Derby was organized by Amelia Earhart in 1929. It has been an annual event since 1947.

EVERYBODY HAD fun at the Des Plaines Jaycoes work and the heat Saturday, but she didn't lose any of her enthusiasm. The carnival ran Friday through Sunday night.

The local scene

Baha'is meeting July 16

The Baha'is of Des Plaines will meet to discuss the teachings of their faith at 7:30 p.m. Friday at 1491 Fifth Ave., Des Plaines.

More information on the meeting and organization is available by calling 299-7686.

Drug, alcohol abuse talks

Five Maine Township High School students will complete the second annual Illinois Teenage Institute on Substance Abuse at Hudson, Ill., to day.

The institute will be attended by Lisa Asplund and Catherine Phillips of Maine South High School, Park Ridge; and Ellen Christ, Jacqueline Ennis and Sue Sykora of Maine West High School, Des Plaines.

The purpose of the institute is to bring together Illinois teen-agers and expert resource people to share information about alcohol and drug usage.

Hansen to describe African experiences

Roy Hansen III will speak about his experiences the past two years with the American International School of Zaire Sunday at the 9 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. services of Christ Church, 1492 Henry Ave., Des Plaines.

Hansen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hansen, recently completed a teaching assignment in Africa.

O'Donnell ends boot camp

Marine Pvt. Timothy G. O'Donnell, 17, has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C.

O'Donnell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. O'Donnell, 2275 Webster Ln., Des Plaines.

During the 11-week training program, O'Donnell learned battlefield survival, life participation in a physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close-order drill.

O'Donnell is a 1976 graduate of Maine West High School. He joined the Marines in October 1975.

City schedules two blood drives

Drives for the Des Plaines blood plan will be July 29 and Aug. 28.

The July 29 drive is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Des Plaines Library, 841 Graceland Ave. The Aug. 28 drive will be from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Des Plaines City Hall, 1420 Miner St.

Added blood transfusions are needed during peak vacation periods to assure Des Plaines citywide coverage. When the quota of 200 units a month is met, all residents and their families are guaranteed unlimited blood replacement city officials said.

Healthy persons 17 to 65 years old may donate blood providing eight weeks have passed since the last donation and the person's weight is 110 pounds or more.

For information on the drive or an appointment to donate blood, call the city health department, 297-1200, ext. 210.

3 groups set blood drives to up supply

Three local businesses and organizations are holding blood drives to help alleviate a blood shortage this summer in the Des Plaines area.

DeSoto Inc., 1700 S. Mount Prospect Rd., will sponsor a blood drive for its employees July 21. Peggy Argento, health and safety administrator, is chairman for the drive.

Another drive is sponsored by St. Zachary Catholic Church, 567 Algonquin Rd., July 24 from 8:30 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. and 1:15 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Chairman for that drive is Mary Ann Pasterik.

Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 W. Ballard Rd., will hold blood drives July 25 and Aug. 29. Hours for the drives are from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. and from 1:15 p.m. to 3 p.m. Stuart Zelden and Jack Melinger are co-chairmen for the drive. Appointments can be made by calling the congregation office at 297-2006.

Other groups interested in having blood drives can call Candace Ramsey, blood chairman of the Des Plaines Health Dept., at 297-1200.

Tuttle elected Lions director

Milton H. Tuttle, 1265 River Dr., Des Plaines, has been elected to the Lions International Board of Directors.

The election took place at the 59th annual convention of the Lions Club in June in Honolulu. The Lions Club is the world's largest service organization with more than one million members serving in 149 nations.

Tuttle, an attorney, is a former justice of the peace, Maine Township collector and past president of the Cook County Collectors Assn.

He has been a member of the Des Plaines Lions Club since 1944 and is a charter director of the Northwest Suburban YMCA.

Chevy Chase annex debate by village tonight

by BILL HURLEY

The annexation of a 550-acre parcel including the Chevy Chase Country Club and surrounding property will be considered tonight by the Buffalo Grove Village Board.

The proposed annexation would extend the village boundaries more than two miles east, increasing the size of Buffalo Grove by one fourth.

The land is predominantly north of the Lake Cook county border and is bordered by the golf course on the north, Portwine Road on the east and the village limits on the west.

The board will meet to consider the annexation at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Last year residents of the 40 home Chevy Chase subdivision on Milwaukee Avenue which is included in the proposed annexation petitioned the Wheeling Village Board asking that Wheeling annex the property before Buffalo Grove did.

RESIDENTS SAID they prefer Wheeling because Buffalo Grove's master plan calls for development of an industrial park nearby. The tentative Wheeling master plan called for townhouse development.

Wheeling officials later labeled the Chevy Chase area a priority annexation and Buffalo Grove officials said it would be too costly to annex.

William Johnson, co-owner of the land that would be annexed, said he had considered annexing to Wheeling but added, "After some study we feel the Village of Buffalo Grove would be the most advantageous to annex to."

Johnson said development plans will be submitted to the plan commission at a later date. He said most of the land now is vacant.

MOST OF the area is designated for annexation on the Buffalo Grove master plan and is zoned for residential commercial and industrial use. The plan specifies that the golf course should remain open space.

The proposal includes a stretch of land between Milwaukee Avenue and Portwine Road that is not designated for annexation in the master plan.

The requested annexation is the most dramatic expansion of village lines proposed since Centex Homes Corp. asked Buffalo Grove to annex the 86-acre Hank farm property immediately north of Chevy Chase Country Club several years ago. The village ultimately rejected the development because of the heavy concentration of multiple family dwellings but not until after the Village of Wheeling had expressed concern about Buffalo Grove's eastward expansion.

Revised housing plan due for review tonight

Revised plans for development of townhouse duplex and single-family units east of Weiland Road will be presented to the Buffalo Grove Village Board tonight for a public hearing and possible approval.

The hearing is at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Centex Homes Corp. has changed plans and the name of a development approved by the board in 1977. Originally called Winston Square, the complex now is called Ridgewood and is proposed to consist of 108 townhouse duplex and 112 single-family units.

It is located on a 67-acre parcel east of Weiland Road and about three blocks north of Ill. Rte. 83. The land was annexed in 1973.

The Winston Square plans called for construction of 350 townhouse and 155 single-family units.

Developers say the economic and environmental impacts of both plans are similar.

IN A REVENUE study prepared by Centex, developers say the complex would bring $127,000 annually to the village in increased tax revenues, vehicle and license fees, shared taxes from the state based on population and water user fees.

No figures were available on the cost to the village for police protection, street repairs, water service or utility maintenance.

The project is estimated to add 1,178 residents to Buffalo Grove and about 100 students to Aptakisne Tripp School Dist. 102. The district has one school with 267 students and 17 teachers. Included in the annexation agreement is an elementary school site donation of 10 acres.

Dist. 102 Supt. Harold Roggensdorf has told the village he is worried about the impact the development will have on the district.

MY FIRST reaction is that the school is not receiving the type of aid which will enable us to provide classrooms for the students generated," he said in May in a letter to the village.

Also included in site plans are a 1.3-acre commercial area.

DAVID HEIER

Little big man making sprint for success

by DON FRISKE

To be a successful jockey, you have to be small but think big.

David Heier, an 18-year-old learning the craft at Arlington Park, fits the descriptions.

The 5-foot-3, 105-pound apprentice jockey, who is currently living with his father in Mount Prospect, has set high goals for himself.

ABOUT FIVE years ago, he was in New Orleans where he was convinced that his future should be at the race track.

"This guy told me that jockeys drive around in big cars, flash big bills and have lots of beautiful women around them," Heier said after a race last week. "Right there and then I said that's for me."

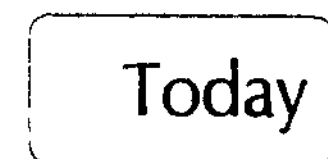

Heier remembered how his grand mother used to kid him about being small and he was impressed by the highly optimistic advice of his new friend.

"I knew I had to learn and start from the bottom, but I never really knew what I was in for," Heier said.

HE EXPLAINED how he was "messed over" for three years by people who owned horses, but knew little about them. His first experience was with the uncle of his new friend in California.

After spending six months there he returned to New Orleans for a year. When the race season was over, he headed for California again.

He was hitchhiking and during the trip he somehow got separated from

HEIER SPENT three years on the ground level as a groom and a hotwalker. After spending some time in New York and Florida, he made a deal with a man in New Orleans.

"I galloped all of his horses for free just so I could get my license. I did this for two months earlier this year. It was hard work," Heier said.

But the deal paid off in other ways. He met Gerald Sampaio, the man he feels helped him the most.

"I owe a lot to him, though he won't take any credit for it," Heier said.

"He looked after me, taught me how to relax a horse and he got on my back a lot, which upset me at the time. But I realized now that it paid off."

HEIER HAS been racing since February. He rode in three races in New Orleans and has been in the same number at Arlington Park this season.

"Jockeys are like fingerprints," he said. "Each has their own technique and style. You have to take the best points from the best jockeys and also watch their mistakes and then build your own style around that."

Heier took three years to distinguish between the people who were making false promises and those who were sincere.

"IF I HADN'T been messed over for so many years, I'd have been riding a long time ago. There were many times when I had reasons — valid reasons — to quit, but I knew that I would make it sooner or later," he said.

Even though he admits he has a long way to go, he has matured much in the past few years. During a time when many teenagers wait for their future to come to them, Heier was

Delegates sample the Big Apple

by STEVE BROWN
Herald political writer

NEW YORK — U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., Sunday received formal endorsement for the vice presidential nomination from the Illinois delegation to the Democratic National Convention. But mostly it was a day for delegates to begin finding their way around New York City amidst delays and unfamiliar surroundings.

Stevenson's endorsement came after the state delegation caucused to elect Mayor Richard J. Daley as its chairman. The state delegation's demonstration of unity was in stark contrast to the 1972 convention when Daley and the bulk of his delegates from Chicago were ousted from the gathering in a credentials battle.

The show of unity began when James Wall of Elmhurst, Carter's Illinois campaign manager, nominated Daley for the chairmanship. Wall backed George McGovern in 1972 and frequently has found himself at odds with the mayor.

Several statewide candidates, including Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, spoke about the problems in 1972 and this year's harmony indicating the strength of the Democratic party in Illinois.

AN EXPECTED fight over the election of a vice chairman evaporated when Lucille Gallagher, Arlington Heights, declined to put her name in nomination for the position. A number of women

Skinner asks state corruption ranking

Which of the 50 states is the most corrupt? That's the interesting question the legislative council will spend part of the summer trying to answer. The man who asked them to find out is state Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake. Despite scandals and-or convictions involving such notables as Paul Powell, Otto Kerner, Thomas Keane and untold numbers of legislators and local officials, Skinner says he doesn't think Illinois will turn out to be the most corrupt state.

He thinks oil politics will win that honor for Texas. But he also won't discount the possibility that New Jersey, Florida, Pennsylvania or Spira Agnew's home state of Maryland might cop top honors. Skinner said last week he became interested in the general subject of political corruption several years ago at a college reunion when a political science professor told him, "You have to have corruption to make the system work." To fight that kind of acceptance of graft and impropriety, Skinner said, he wants to "somehow systematize" reports of political irregularities. If some precise index of corruption can be compiled, he said, voters will find it easier to assess the need for change in their state.

"At some point, you need to purge the system," he said. He said he'd like to have an index of the percentage of legislators indicted in each state, the numbers of local officials indicted and some overall impression of the seriousness of each state's problem. Skinner said he's not exactly sure how the corruption ranking might improve government.

Youth dies in cycle crash

Michael Dexter, 17, Galesburg, died Sunday of injuries sustained when he lost control of the motorcycle he was driving and slid under a pickup truck. Authorities said Dexter was not touched by the truck. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital in Galesburg after the accident Saturday night, then was transferred to St. Francis Hospital in Peoria. He died three hours after the crash.

Woman run over by her car

Teen drowns in pool

A Michigan teen-ager drowned Saturday in the pool beneath a spillway at Devil's Kitchen Lake near Carleville. Authorities said Mark Caratelli, 17, Madison Heights, Mich., apparently was swimming in the pool or fell into the water while fishing. He and his parents had been on a picnic at the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Preserve near this Southern Illinois town during a vacation visit with Caratelli's uncle, Ray Lukac, Herrin.

2 policemen shot in narcotics raid

Two Chicago policemen were shot during a narcotics raid on a South Side apartment Saturday night. Two brothers were charged in the case. Officer Clarence Travis, 43, was admitted to St. Bernard Hospital with a gunshot wound in his left wrist. He was listed in good condition Sunday. Lovejoy Foster, 44, was treated for a grave wound near his left eye and released. The two were shot when they attempted to serve a search warrant at an apartment, authorities said. William Currie, 22, was charged with two counts of attempted murder, two counts of aggravated battery and possession of heroin.

Currie's brother, Joseph, 26, was charged with possession of heroin. Bond for William Currie was set at $100,000 and at $10,000 for Joseph Currie. Both cases were continued until Tuesday.

Powder Puff pilots brave storm, land in Wilmington

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Approximately 35 female pilots flying in the 29th annual Powder Puff Derby braved a major East Coast thunderstorm system Sunday and landed at the Wilmington airport, the last stop on their 2,916 mile coast-to-coast journey.

The rest of the 200 planes which took off Friday from Sacramento, Calif., are expected in Monday the last day of the contest.

Three planes landed in Wilmington on Saturday.

A contest official said poor weather delayed many of the pilots Sunday morning, but by midday most were in the air, heading east.

"THEY'RE PRETTY tough gals, a little rain won't bother them," the spokeswoman said.

Most of the planes landing Sunday flew in from Parkersburg, W. Va., or Nashville.

This year's event is the last in the 47 year history of the contest, which pits the flying skills of the nation's best female pilots against one another.

The first Powder Puff Derby was organized by Amelia Earhart in 1929. It has been an annual event since 1947.

Janishawski accepts post

Tri-county health director named

Richard Janishawski of Hayward, Wis., has accepted the executive directorship of the Health Systems Agency for Kane, Lake and McHenry counties.

The health agency has been without a director since the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare designated it last April as the official health planning agency in the tri-county area.

Janishawski's acceptance marks the end of a three-month search that included offering the job in May to Ronald D. Warner of Presque Isle, Maine. Warner refused the offer to take another job.

Janishawski, 29, present director of the Northwest Area Comprehensive Health Planning Organization, Inc.,

Wisconsin, a bi-state agency, said he will be ready to assume the $26,000 post July 26.

DURING AN HOUR of questions from health agency representatives, Janishawski said, "The biggest problem the health agency faces right now is to build credibility with health care providers and consumers."

Barbara Gordon, chairman of the health agency personnel committee, said that answer was one of the primary reasons Janishawski got the job.

"I think they felt that answer showed an understanding of the health agency. He also demonstrated a strong, executive ability," Mrs. Gordon said.

Janishawski was chosen unanimously by the agency in an open vote.

Janishawski has a bachelor of science degree in biology and chemistry from the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee and a masters degree in public health administration from the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis.

Hopefuls sought for school post

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 will accept applications until July 19 from residents who are interested in filling the vacancy on the board of education created by the resignation of Jack Lane.

Lane's resignation was announced at the June 24 board meeting.

Lane, of 3112 N. Volz Dr., Arlington Heights, said he resigned from the board after five years because he is moving out of the district.

Residents who are interested in applying for the position may contact the administration center at 537-8270.

The board will conduct interviews with prospective candidates beginning at 7:30 p.m. July 21. The new board member will be announced at the July 22 board meeting.

Anyone who is at least 18 years old, a resident of the district for at least a year and a registered voter, may apply for the post.

Change in zone rule to be sought at meet tonight

A proposal to permit the Buffalo Grove Zoning Board of Appeals to make minor changes in zoning restrictions without village board approval will come before the village board tonight.

Under the proposal, the zoning board could give final approval to variations in yard size or in the building of fences that do not conform to village ordinances.

The village board now is required to approve all zoning change requests after the plan commission holds hearings.

The board is expected to act on the proposal at its 8 p.m. meeting at village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

The proposal originally was scheduled for village board consideration June 14. The amendment would permit the zoning board to authorize variations for yards no more than 33 per cent smaller than required by ordinance, lots no more than 15 per cent smaller in width than required by ordinance and fences no more than six feet high.

Major zoning changes that would authorize construction or expansion of a business or industry still would have to be approved by the trustees.

Revised housing plan review tonight

home lot would be 8,829 square feet, compared with an average lot size of 3,540 square feet for duplexes and 2,720 square feet for townhouse units.

Developers completed construction of townhouse and zero-lot line home models two years ago, and construction is in progress on some townhouse units. If approved, construction of the single-family homes is to begin in early fall.

Leaflet urges parent input on Dist. 54 lunches

Residents are distributing leaflets in Schaumburg Township urging parents to attend a meeting Tuesday to discuss a parent-paid lunch program with the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education.

The board scheduled the meeting for 8 p.m. Tuesday at Keller Junior High School, 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg, at a July 1 board meeting attended by a large number of parents protesting the lunch program approved by the board in June.

Millic Turner, 171 Gysom Ln., Hoffman Estates, has given the board petitions signed by 1,131 residents protesting the lunch program, and said some petitions still are circulating. "We've been passing out fliers rather than concentrating on petitions because it's more important to get the people out," she said.

THE PROGRAM requires parents to pay $35 per child to have their children eat lunch at school if they live less than 1.5 miles from school. This fee covers the cost of lunchroom supervisors only. Children must bring their own lunch.

Junior high school students and those who live more than 1.5 miles from school and so are required to be bused will not be charged the fee.

Parents at the meeting last week protested they had not been adequately informed that the board was considering a plan that would cost parents $35 per child. The board dropped the district-paid lunch program to save $70,000.

Parents said they had not been able to determine why the program would cost so much, and that Dist. 54 is charging more than other districts in the area.

PARENTS SAID that the board had not considered alternative programs, such as using volunteers for supervisors.

Board Pres. Arlene Czajkowski, reading a list of lunch program articles that had appeared in area newspapers, responded that citizens have the responsibility to keep themselves informed.

"We have tried volunteer programs before, and they do not work," Mrs. Czajkowski said. "Those who need the lunch program the most (working parents) are those who cannot volunteer their time" as supervisors, and the work falls on a handful of people, she said.

Mrs. Czajkowski said the meeting Tuesday will be for information only, and that the board will not be able to take any action because it is not a regular board meeting.

Parks back seniors' activities

The Elk Grove Park District has endorsed a proposed plan to increase senior citizen participation in recreational activities.

The plan calls for half fees for seniors in some park programs, establishment of daytime senior activity centers and increased bus stops for the monthly bus service to the district's senior citizen club meeting.

The one aspect of the proposal the board did not agree to was a 25-cent charge for the bus. The bus will continue to be free for senior citizens.

Recreation Supt. Paul Swanson has presented the plan to the park board. It also will be presented to the senior citizen club for its approval.

The park board approved a list of 26 programs to which senior citizens will be admitted for half price starting this fall. The programs include sports instruction, arts and crafts, food preservation and auto mechanics.

Swanson said the 25-cent fee was considered because of the rising bus operation costs.

The daytime program would be designed to provide two or more locations close to where the seniors live for daytime social contact and recreational enjoyment. The number of such "centers" and how frequently they would be open would be determined by the seniors.

Roselle man, 24, killed in car crash

A 24-year-old Roselle man was killed early Sunday when his car crashed through the window of an Elk Grove Village manufacturing company, firefighters reported.

Firemen said a car driven by Raymond Rozko, 35 W. Hattendorf, crashed through a window at A. B. Dick Co., 2200 Arthur Ave., at around midnight Sunday.

Rozko's passenger, Paulino Leal, 21, of 271 Oakwood, Wood Dale, reportedly suffered a fractured right leg in the accident. He was reported in fair condition at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, Sunday afternoon.

Police are investigating cause of the accident.

The accident was discovered at 7:30 a.m. Sunday. When paramedics arrived on the scene, they reportedly found Rozko and Leal still seated in the car.

NEW YORK — U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., Sunday received formal endorsement for the vice presidential nomination from the Illinois delegation to the Democratic National Convention. But mostly it was a day for delegates to begin finding their way around New York City amidst delays and unfamiliar surroundings.

Stevenson's endorsement came after the state delegation caucused to elect Mayor Richard J. Daley as its chairman. The state delegation's demonstration of unity was in stark contrast to the 1972 convention when Daley and the bulk of his delegates from Chicago were ousted from the gathering in a credentials battle.

The show of unity began when James Wall of Elmhurst, Carter's Illinois campaign manager, nominated Daley for the chairmanship. Wall backed George McGovern in 1972 and frequently has found himself at odds with the mayor.

Several statewide candidates, including Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, spoke about the problems in 1972 and this year's harmony indicating the strength of the Democratic party in Illinois.

AN EXPECTED fight over the election of a vice chairman evaporated when Lucille Gallagher, Arlington Heights, declined to put her name in nomination for the position. A number of women

DAVID HEIER

Little big man making sprint for success

by DON FRISKE

To be a successful jockey, you have to be small, but think big. David Heier, an 18-year-old learning the craft at Arlington Park, fits the descriptions.

The 5-foot-3, 105-pound apprentice jockey, who is currently living with his father in Mount Prospect, has set high goals for himself.

ABOUT FIVE years ago, he was in New Orleans, where he was convinced that his future should be at the race track.

"This guy told me that jockeys drive around in big cars, flash big bills and have lots of beautiful women around them," Heier said after a race last week. "Right there and then, I said that's for me."

Heier remembered how his grandmother used to kid him about being small and he was impressed by the highly optimistic advice of his new friend.

"I knew I had to learn and start from the bottom but I never really knew what I was in for," Heier said.

HE EXPLAINED how he was "messed over" for three years by people who owned horses, but knew little about them. His first experience was with the uncle of his new friend in California.

After spending six months there, he returned to New Orleans for a year. When the race season was over, he headed for California again.

Today

the others he was travelling with. "I ended up in Denver, Colo. and went straight to the nearest track," he said. "That's all I knew and I figured I could get a job. I worked there for about four or five months."

HEIER SPENT three years on the ground level as a groom and a hotwalker. After spending some time in New York and Florida, he made a deal with a man in New Orleans. "I galloped all of his horses for free, just so I could get my license. I did this for two months earlier this year. It was hard work," Heier said. But the deal paid off in other ways. He met Gerald Sampa, the man he feels helped him the most.

"I owe a lot to him, though he won't take any credit for it," Heier said. "He looked after me, taught me how to relax a horse and he got on my back a lot, which upset me at the time. But I realized now that it paid off."

HEIER HAS been racing since February. He rode in three races in New Orleans and has been in the same number at Arlington Park this season.

"Jockeys are like fingerprints," he said. "Each has their own technique and style. You have to take the best points from the best jockeys and also watch their mistakes and then build your own style around that."

Heier took three years to distinguish between the people who were making false promises and those who were sincere.

"IF I HADN'T been messed over for so many years, I'd have been riding a long time ago. There were many times when I had reasons — valid reasons — to quit, but I knew that I would make it sooner or later," he said.

Even though he admits he has a long way to go, he has matured much in the past few years. During a time when many teen-agers wait for their future come to them, Heier was

Skinner asks state corruption ranking

Which of the 50 states is the most corrupt? That's the interesting question the legislative council will spend part of the summer trying to answer. The man who asked them to find out is state Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake. Despite scandals and-or convictions involving such notables as Paul Powell, Otto Kerner, Thomas Keane and untold numbers of legislators and local officials, Skinner says he doesn't think Illinois will turn out to be the most corrupt state.

He thinks oil politics will win that honor for Texas. But he also won't discount the possibility that New Jersey, Florida, Pennsylvania or Spiro Agnew's home state of Maryland might cop top honors. Skinner said last week he became interested in the general subject of political corruption several years ago at a college reunion when a political science professor told him, "You have to have corruption to make the system work." To fight that kind of acceptance of graft and impropriety, Skinner said, he wants to "somehow systematize" reports of political irregularities. If some precise index of corruption can be compiled, he said, voters will find it easier to assess the need for change in their state.

"At some point, you need to purge the system," he said. He said he'd like to have an index of the percentage of legislators indicted in each state, the numbers of local officials indicted and some overall impression of the seriousness of each state's problem. Skinner said he's not exactly sure how the corruption ranking might improve government.

Youth dies in cycle crash

Michael Dexter, 17, Galesburg, died Sunday of injuries sustained when he lost control of the motorcycle he was driving and it slid under a pickup truck. Authorities said Dexter was not touched by the truck. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital in Galesburg after the accident Saturday night, then was transferred to St. Francis Hospital in Peoria. He died three hours after the crash.

Woman run over by her car

Teen drowns in pool

A Michigan teen-ager drowned Saturday in the pool beneath a spillway at Devil's Kitchen Lake near Carterville. Authorities said Mark Caratelli, 17, Madison Heights, Mich., apparently was swimming in the pool or fell into the water while fishing. He and his parents had been on a picnic at the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Preserve near this Southern Illinois town during a vacation visit with Caratelli's uncle, Ray Lukac, Herrin.

2 policemen shot in narcotics raid

Two Chicago policemen were shot during a narcotics raid on a South Side apartment Saturday night. Two brothers were charged in the case. Officer Clarence Travis, 43, was admitted to St. Bernard Hospital with a gunshot wound in his left wrist. He was listed in good condition Sunday. Lovejoy Foster, 44, was treated for a graze wound near his left eye and released. The two were shot when they attempted to serve a search warrant at an apartment, authorities said. William Currie, 22, was charged with two counts of attempted murder, two counts of aggravated battery and possession of heroin.

Currie's brother, Joseph, 26, was charged with possession of heroin. Bond for William Currie was set at $100,000 and at $10,000 for Joseph Currie. Both cases were continued until Tuesday.

Powder Puff pilots brave storm, land in Wilmington

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Approximately 35 female pilots flying in the 29th annual Powder Puff Derby braved a major East Coast thunderstorm system Sunday and landed at the Wilmington airport, the last stop on their 2,916 mile coast-to-coast journey.

The rest of the 200 planes which took off Friday from Sacramento, Calif., are expected in Monday the last day of the contest.

Three planes landed in Wilmington on Saturday.

A contest official said poor weather delayed many of the pilots Sunday morning, but by midday most were in the air, heading east.

"THEY'RE PRETTY tough gals, a little rain won't bother them," the spokeswoman said.

Most of the planes landing Sunday flew in from Parkersburg, W.Va., or Nashville.

This year's event is the last in the 47 year history of the contest, which pits the flying skills of the nation's best female pilots against one another.

The first Powder Puff Derby was organized by Amelia Earhart in 1929. It has been an annual event since 1947.

Tell Dist. 211 board

Students seek return to basics

by PAM BIGFORD

Program requirements should be increased, foreign languages given more emphasis, and students counseled about what courses will be of future benefit to them, past and present High School Dist. 211 students told the board.

Students had a number of recommendations for the board to consider last week during the board's semi-annual session.

"We're expanding the curriculum, but students are suffering and not learning the basics," said Edward Bell, a graduate of Conant High School, Hoffman Estates, who now attends Northern Illinois University. Bell said high school students are not ready for the district's self-scheduling, which allows students to choose which classes they want at what times.

Kevin Richardson, a graduate of Fremd High School, Palatine, who is now attending Notre Dame University, South Bend, Ind., said, "If I had to do it over again, I would have made it a lot harder on myself."

RICHARDSON SAID he didn't realize the value many courses he did not take in high school would have had in college.

"I like the idea of choosing between courses for a requirement," he said. "There's a certain security in knowing where you're going" because of course requirements.

Michael Delia, from Conant High School, Hoffman Estates, said he agreed students might need to be required to take different courses, "but I can't see the two year requirement. One year is sufficient to give a person a taste."

The students split over whether high school sophomores or juniors are able to decide intelligently whether they are going to attend college or go to work.

Some students were concerned that 16-year-olds would choose a vocational education, but then change their minds after they were graduated and not be prepared to go to college.

"YOU SHOULD encourage everybody to go to college and plan your curriculum that way," Delia said. "You can't make much money without a diploma in your hand."

But Brian Aipland, of Fremd, said "the choice should be there" for students who are going to college and those who want to get a job. "If the choice is there, the student can make it himself or with help from counselors," he said.

"Everybody is different, and not everybody should go to college," said Lance Gackowski from Palatine High School, Palatine. He said there are now "so many white-collar workers that they can't all get jobs. There are a lot of people who make it without going to college."

Boys football signup Saturday

Elk Grove Boys Football Inc. will have a special registration for its tackle football program from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Lions Park Community Center, 180 Kennedy Blvd.

The program, sponsored by the Elk Grove Park District, is for boys less than 130 pounds in weight and between 8 and 14 years old. The registration fee is $20 for the first boy in a family, $10 for the second and no fee for additional family members.

On July 19, registration will move to the park office, 499 Blesterfield Rd.

All Community and Traveling League home games will be played on Lindahl Field, Wellington Avenue, and in Disney Park, Wellington Avenue and Blesterfield Road. The Traveling League will play in the Fox Valley Youth Football League. Practice will begin Aug. 2.

History museum work pact granted

R.C. Construction Co., Des Plaines, is the apparent low bidder for hooking up water, sewer and electrical services to the Elk Grove Historical Society museum.

Six bids were received by the Elk Grove Park District which oversees the historical society. The bids ranged from R.C. Construction's $4,322 to a high of $8,750. The contract was awarded to R.C. Construction, contingent on review by Elk Grove Engineering, which designed the bid specifications.

The museum building, which is located at Disney Park, Blesterfield Road west of Wellington Avenue, has not yet been lowered onto its new foundation. The building was moved from another site after its donation by the Maioriello family.

Court hearing today for man held in murder

by DAVE IBATA

A 19-year-old Schaumburg man living in the home of a Schaumburg woman and her son is charged with the brutal stabbing murder of the woman early Saturday after he returned home from a night of drinking with friends, police said.

Joseph Patrick Dacy will appear in court today charged with murdering Rhonda Isabel Enck, 35, a divorcee in her home at 1128 Churchill Rd. Dacy, a former classmate of 18-year-old Brian Enck at Conant High School, had been living in the $60,000 home for 12 months, police said.

Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy described Dacy as a quiet person, an aspiring rock musician. He left his parents' home, 182 Gentry Rd., Hoffman Estates, and moved in with the Encks, Conroy said.

Dacy reportedly turned himself into Hoffman Estates police at 8:50 a.m. Saturday after he allegedly stabbed Mrs. Enck to death at 1:30 a.m. Notified of the killing, Schaumburg police went to the Enck home at 9:30 a.m. and found Mrs. Enck's partially clothed body lying face up on her bed, Conroy said.

EVIDENCE GATHERED Saturday at the Enck home will be sent today to a state crime laboratory in Springfield for analysis, Conroy said. The Enck house has been sealed, and Brian, his 26-year-old sister Mindy Biltz, of Tucson, Ariz., and their father Mark of Miami, who arrived in town Saturday, are staying at the home of a neighbor.

Ms. Biltz reportedly works at Pima College, Tucson, and Mark Enck works as a regional sales manager for a cruise ship company in Miami. The Enck parents were divorced six months ago, police said.

Police said Brian, on the morning of the murder, came home from a date at 2:45 a.m., went to bed, arose and dressed for work at 5:30 a.m. and left the four-bedroom house, unaware of the crime. Police Sunday did not know the whereabouts of Dacy during this time.

Police said neighbors told them they saw or heard no suspicious activity early Saturday at the Enck house.

Dacy will appear at 9:30 a.m. today in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court for a bond hearing, police said.

Probe fails to give lead in library book thefts

by DANN GIRE

A private investigator hired by the North Suburban Library System has had little success in an attempt to locate $5,000 in missing books from the Schaumburg Township Public Library and several other suburban libraries.

Craig Hull of Dunstan Private Investigations in Elgin was hired by the library system to recover books missing from libraries in Schaumburg, Skokie, Evanston and Northbrook. The books were checked out in late March and early April.

Almost $1,000 worth of books, the largest single loss, were taken from Schaumburg Township Public Library, according to Director Michael Madden. Books taken from the Evanston library were valued at $500, from the Northbrook library at $499 and those from the Skokie library at $364.26.

Hull said he has sent a report to the library system indicating information gathered so far in the investigation "is little help in finding the books."

Hull said he has also sent a $148 bill to the system for investigative services from June 29 to July 8.

"WE COULD CONTINUE looking into the matter, but the next step would be bringing in the police artists," a very costly operation, Hull said. "We could get lucky and find the people and the books, or after spending $2,000 we could reach a dead end."

Robert Bullen, administrative services librarian for the system, said Skokie and Evanston are pulling out of the system's reciprocal borrowing program because of the incidents. The system has 38 member libraries in the Chicago and suburban area.

The system's reciprocal borrowing program permits cardholders of member libraries to use facilities at any other member library.

The missing books were checked out on Chicago library cards under the reciprocal borrowing program.

BULLEN SAID it appeared three or four individuals were involved in the book disappearance, but he declined to identify them because no charges have been filed in the case.

The (Cook County) state's attorney's office has told us that theft hasn't been proven in this matter," Bullen said. "All we can say right now is that the books have disappeared."

Library system attorney Robert Smith said Friday the missing books are a dead issue. It appears to be a case of fraudulent identification. I am not optimistic about recovering the books.

NEW YORK — U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., Sunday received formal endorsement from the vice presidential nomination from the Illinois delegation to the Democratic National Convention. But mostly it was a day for delegates to begin finding their way around New York City amidst delays and unfamiliar surroundings.

Stevenson's endorsement came after the state delegation caucused to elect Mayor Richard J. Daley as its chairman. The state delegation's demonstration of unity was in stark contrast to the 1972 convention when Daley and the bulk of his delegates from Chicago were ousted from the gathering in a credentials battle.

The show of unity began when James Wall of Elmhurst, Carter's Illinois campaign manager, nominated Daley for the chairmanship. Wall backed George McGovern in 1972 and frequently has found himself at odds with the mayor.

DAVID HEIER

Little big man making sprint for success

by DON FRISKE

To be a successful jockey, you have to be small, but think big.

David Heier, an 18-year-old learning the craft at Arlington Park, fits the description.

The 5-foot 3, 105-pound apprentice jockey, who is currently living with his father in Mount Prospect, has set high goals for himself.

ABOUT FIVE years ago he was in New Orleans, where he was convinced that his future would be at the race track.

This guy told me that jockeys drive around in big cars, flash big bills and have lots of beautiful women around them," Heier said after a race last week. "Right there and then, I said that's for me."

Heier remembered how his grandmother used to kid him about being small and he was impressed by the highly optimistic advice of his new friend.

"I knew I had to learn and start from the bottom, but I never really knew what I was in for," Heier said.

HE EXPLAINED how he was "messed over" for three years by people who owned horses, but knew little about them. His first experience was with the uncle of his new friend in California.

After spending six months there, he returned to New Orleans for a year. When the race season was over, he headed for California again.

He was hitchhiking and during the trip he somehow got separated from the others he was traveling with. "I ended up in Denver, Colo. and went straight to the nearest track," he said. "That's all I knew and I figured I could get a job. I worked there for about four or five months."

HEIER SPENT three years on the ground level as a groom and a hotwalker. After spending some time in New York and Florida, he made a deal with a man in New Orleans.

"I galloped all of his horses for free just so I could get my license. I did this for two months earlier this year. It was hard work," Heier said.

But the deal paid off in other ways. He met Gerald Sampa, the man he feels helped him the most.

"I owe a lot to him, though he won't take any credit for it," Heier said. "He looked after me, taught me how to relax a horse and he got on my back a lot, which upset me at the time. But I realized now that it paid off."

HEIER HAS been racing since February. He rode in three races in New Orleans and has been in the same number at Arlington Park this season.

"Jockeys are like fingerprints," he said. "Each has their own technique and style. You have to take the best points from the best jockeys and also watch their mistakes and then build your own style around that."

Heier took three years to distinguish between the people who were making false promises and those who were sincere.

"IF I HADN'T been messed over for so many years, I'd have been riding a long time ago. There were many times when I had reasons — valid reasons — to quit, but I knew that I would make it sooner or later," he said.

Even though he admits he has a long way to go, he has matured much in the past few years. During a time when many teen-agers wait for their future to come to them, Heier was

Skinner asks state corruption ranking

Which of the 50 states is the most corrupt? That's the interesting question the legislative council will spend part of the summer trying to answer. The man who asked them to find out is state Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake. Despite scandals and-or convictions involving such notables as Paul Powell, Otto Kerner, Thomas Keane and untold numbers of legislators and local officials, Skinner says he doesn't think Illinois will turn out to be the most corrupt state.

He thinks oil politics will win that honor for Texas. But he also won't discount the possibility that New Jersey, Florida, Pennsylvania or Spiro Agnew's home state of Maryland might cop top honors. Skinner said last week he became interested in the general subject of political corruption several years ago at a college reunion when a political science professor told him, "You have to have corruption to make the system work." To fight that kind of acceptance of graft and impropriety, Skinner said, he wants to "somehow systematize" reports of political irregularities. If some precise index of corruption can be compiled, he said, voters will find it easier to assess the need for change in their state.

"At some point, you need to purge the system," he said. He said he'd like to have an index of the percentage of legislators indicted in each state, the numbers of local officials indicted and some overall impression of the seriousness of each state's problem. Skinner said he's not exactly sure how the corruption ranking might improve government.

Youth dies in cycle crash

Michael Dexter, 17, Galesburg, died Sunday of injuries sustained when he lost control of the motorcycle he was driving and it slid under a pickup truck. Authorities said Dexter was not touched by the truck. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital in Galesburg after the accident Saturday night, then was transferred to St. Francis Hospital in Peoria. He died three hours after the crash.

Woman run over by her car

Teen drowns in pool

A Michigan teen-ager drowned Saturday in the pool beneath a spillway at Devil's Kitchen Lake near Carterville. Authorities said Mark Caratelli, 17, Madison Heights, Mich., apparently was swimming in the pool or fell into the water while fishing. He and his parents had been on a picnic at the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Preserve near this Southern Illinois town during a vacation visit with Caratelli's uncle, Ray Lukac, Herrin.

2 policemen shot in narcotics raid

Two Chicago policemen were shot during a narcotics raid on a South Side apartment Saturday night. Two brothers were charged in the case. Officer Clarence Travis, 43, was admitted to St. Bernard Hospital with a gunshot wound in his left wrist. He was listed in good condition Sunday. Lovejoy Foster, 44, was treated for a graze wound near his left eye and released. The two were shot when they attempted to serve a search warrant at an apartment, authorities said. William Currie, 22, was charged with two counts of attempted murder, two counts of aggravated battery and possession of heroin.

Currie's brother, Joseph, 26, was charged with possession of heroin. Bond for William Currie was set at $100,000 and at $10,000 for Joseph Currie. Both cases were continued until Tuesday.

Powder Puff pilots brave storm, land in Wilmington

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Approximately 35 female pilots flying in the 29th annual Powder Puff Derby braved a major East Coast thunderstorm system Sunday and landed at the Wilmington airport, the last stop on their 2,916 mile coast-to-coast journey.

The rest of the 200 planes which took off Friday from Sacramento, Calif., are expected in Monday the last day of the contest.

Three planes landed in Wilmington on Saturday.

A contest official said poor weather delayed many of the pilots Sunday morning, but by midday most were in the air, heading east.

"THEY'RE PRETTY tough gals, a little rain won't bother them," the spokeswoman said.

Most of the planes landing Sunday flew in from Parkersburg, W.Va., or Nashville.

This year's event is the last in the 47 year history of the contest, which pits the flying skills of the nation's best female pilots against one another.

The first Powder Puff Derby was organized by Amelia Earhart in 1929. It has been an annual event since 1947.

Circulated in Dist. 54

Flier asks input on paid lunches

Residents are distributing leaflets in Schaumburg Township urging parents to attend a meeting Tuesday to discuss a parent-paid lunch program with the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education.

The board scheduled the meeting for 8 p.m. Tuesday at Keller Junior High School, 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg, at a July 1 board meeting attended by a large number of parents protesting the lunch program approved by the board in June.

Millie Turner, 174 Grissom Ln., Hoffman Estates, has given the board petitions signed by 1,131 residents protesting the lunch program, and said some petitions still are circulating. "We've been passing out fliers rather than concentrating on petitions because it's more important to get the people out," she said.

THE PROGRAM requires parents to pay $35 per child to have their children eat lunch at school if they live less than 1.5 miles from school. This fee covers the cost of lunchroom supervisors only. Children must bring their own lunch.

Junior high school students and those who live more than 1.5 miles from school and so are required to be bused will not be charged the fee.

Parents at the meeting last week protested they had not been adequately informed that the board was considering a plan that would cost parents $35 per child. The board dropped the district-paid lunch program to save $70,000.

Parents said they had not been able to determine why the program would cost so much, and that Dist. 54 is charging more than other districts in the area.

PARENTS SAID that the board had not considered alternative programs, such as using volunteers for supervisors.

Board Pres. Arlene Czajkowski, reading a list of lunch program articles that had appeared in area newspapers, responded that citizens have the responsibility to keep themselves informed.

"We have tried volunteer programs before, and they do not work," Mrs. Czajkowski said. "Those who need the lunch program the most (working parents) are those who cannot volunteer their time" as supervisors, and the work falls on a handful of people, she said.

Mrs. Czajkowski said the meeting Tuesday will be for information only, and that the board will not be able to take any action because it is not a regular board meeting.

Lack of aid threatens farm's repair

Renovation of the historic Sunderland farm site in Hoffman Estates into a museum is being threatened by a lack of operating funds, a Poplar Creek Historical Society official says. Marilyn Lind, society president, said she received a letter Friday from Trustee Jeanne Pavey saying that village money should not be spent on restoring the farm site, Vold Drive and Vista Lane in the Moonlake Village complex.

Village ethics code to make 6th showing before board

The controversial ethics code proposed for Hoffman Estates public officials for the sixth time will come before the village judiciary committee tonight.

The ordinance, proposed by Village Pres. Virginia Hayter earlier this year, has been on the committee docket since February.

The code includes restrictions that require real estate brokers on the village board or village commissions to sign statements that they will not accept income from property sales pending before the village.

It also requires that brokers not accept any income for a one-year period following any village action on the property.

Trustee William Cowin, a self-employed real estate broker, has criticized the proposed code repeatedly, labeling it "impossible to live with," and "discriminatory."

Also on tonight's agenda are discussions on proposed regulations for both public and private swimming pools, and a discussion on electronic games policies.

The meeting, which is open to the public, will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the municipal building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr.

Three facing narcotics charges

Three persons face narcotics charges after one of them allegedly tried to use a car to knock down a Schaumburg patrolman at Woodfield Shopping Center, police reported Sunday.

Police arrested Robert Adams, 17, and Victor S. Hollinger, 19, both of Dixon on drug charges; and Bonnie Sue Hollinger, 20, of Bartlett, on drug and battery charges shortly before 8 p.m. Friday in the Woodfield parking lot, police said.

Police said Patrolman Robert Cooksey spotted the three in a car parked in a fire lane at the shopping center. The three reported were passing around a wooden smoking device.

When Cooksey walked up to the car and identified himself as a patrolman, Ms. Hollinger reportedly put her car into gear and tried to knock down the policeman.

Cooksey ordered the trio out of the car, and a search produced less than 10 grams of suspected marijuana and five capsules of amphetamines, police said.

Police charged Victor Hollinger with misdemeanor possession of marijuana; Adams, with felony possession of amphetamines; and Bonnie Hollinger with battery and felony possession of amphetamines.

The three were released on bond and ordered to appear July 21 in the Schaumburg branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Tennis tourney planned

The River Trails Park District is accepting registrations for its annual tennis tournament today through Saturday at Burning Bush Park, 1313 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect.

Nine divisions will be organized by age with individual trophies for first- and second-place winners.

Tornados vs. Kickers

The Tornados, a boy's soccer team sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Park District, will face the Chicago Kickers in exhibition play at 6 p.m. Tuesday at Hansen Stadium, Fullerton and Central Avenues, Chicago.

Tickets are $9 at the gate.

The Tornados, coached by Frank McKenzie and Ted Barvil, are undefeated champions in the Northwest Suburban Soccer League.

The Kickers, also undefeated, are this year's National Soccer League champions.

The Tornados-Kickers game will precede an 8 p.m. game featuring touring teams from the Soviet Union and Germany.

Parks choose tentative site for city bandshell

"After a meeting with the city Bicentennial commission, we favor an area at the northeast edge of Kimball Hill Park north of Kirchhoff Road," Stephen Person, park director said.

The commission is preparing for an intensive fund-raising effort to provide the estimated $60,000 the bandshell construction will cost. The park district, according to Person, "totally supports the commission's plan and has offered the site."

"However the major emphasis now is on financing," Person said. He added that money for construction of the bandshell should come from the total community if it is to be a Bicentennial project.

"Although the park board has indicated its total support of the proposed bandshell construction and pledged a site, we do not have the funds to offer and the money must come from other sources," Person said.

PERSON SAID the commission is still attempting to select a final bandshell design being prepared free by Harper College architectural graduates and students.

Last month Harry O'Brien, chairman of the Bicentennial commission said several businessmen have shown an interest in partially funding the bandshell.

Residents interested in aiding the commission's efforts to construct a bandshell may call O'Brien at 398-3730.

O'BRIEN HAS BEEN waging a one-man campaign to raise funds for the bandshell since being notified several months ago that the bandshell project was not approved by the Illinois Bicentennial Commission for a state grant.

The commission reportedly turned down the city's request for partial funding because the project involved new construction and not renovation of an historical site.

O'Brien argued then that the 20-year-old city lacks historical sites but was instead proposing the bandshell as a commemorative Bicentennial project.

Fox Valley Raiders win 1st-place honors

Winners in the junior division were New Dawn of Racine, Wis., Imperial Cadets of Skokie and General Putnam's Men of Ohio.

Roselle man, 24, killed in car crash

A 24-year-old Roselle man was killed early Sunday when his car crashed through the window of an Elk Grove Village manufacturing company, firefighters reported.

Firemen said a car driven by Raymond Rozko, 35 W. Hattendorf, crashed through a window at A. B. Dick Co., 2200 Arthur Ave., at around midnight Sunday.

Rozko's passenger, Paulino Leal, 21, of 271 Oakwood, Wood Dale, reportedly suffered a fractured right leg in the accident. He was reported in fair condition at Alexian Brothers Medical Center Elk Grove Village Sunday afternoon.

Police are investigating cause of the accident.

The accident was discovered at 7:30 a.m. Sunday. When paramedics arrived on the scene, they reportedly found Rozko and Leal still seated in the car.

Doubt the date?

Yup, July 26 is no holiday

Sorry, folks of Rolling Meadows. You don't get July 26 off as Memorial Day, even though the city calendar says it's a holiday.

It's a goof.

You might say Rolling Meadows got in its own licks to the confusion surrounding the national and state observances of the traditional May holiday this year. The city-published calendar distributed free of charge to residents incorrectly lists the last Monday of this month as Memorial Day.

"It's a mistake that didn't get caught," Acting City Mgr. Charles Green admits. "We checked the proofs but either we missed that one or somehow it got in by mistake afterward."

But, alas, adds Green, the mistake "doesn't make the calendar worth any money."

Lovejoy Foster, 44, was treated for a graze wound near his left eye and released. The two were shot when they attempted to serve a search warrant at an apartment, authorities said. William Currie, 22, was charged with two counts of attempted murder, two counts of aggravated battery and possession of heroin.

Currie's brother, Joseph, 26, was charged with possession of heroin. Bond for William Currie was set at $100,000 and at $10,000 for Joseph Currie. Both cases were continued until Tuesday.

Powder Puff pilots brave storm, land in Wilmington

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Approximately 35 female pilots flying in the 29th annual Powder Puff Derby braved a major East Coast thunderstorm system Sunday and landed at the Wilmington airport, the last stop on their 2,916 mile coast-to-coast journey.

The rest of the 300 planes which took off Friday from Sacramento, Calif., are expected in Monday the last day of the contest.

Three planes landed in Wilmington on Saturday.

A contest official said poor weather delayed many of the pilots Sunday morning, but by midday most were in the air, heading east.

"THEY'RE PRETTY tough gals, a little rain won't bother them," the spokeswoman said.

Most of the planes landing Sunday flew in from Parkersburg, W.Va., or Nashville.

This year's event is the last in the 47 year history of the contest, which pits the flying skills of the nation's best female pilots against one another.

The first Powder Puff Derby was organized by Amelia Earhart in 1929. It has been an annual event since 1947.

IN SPITE OF the sun, Melody and Doug Winters found Sunday was a card of a day for playing gin rummy and picking up a tan. They sweat out the rigors of the game in the relative peace of a deserted grassy spot, unperturbed by 90-degree temperatures.

Dacy charged in stabbing murder

Man held in killing in court today

by DAVE IBATA

A 19-year-old Schaumburg man living in the home of a Schaumburg woman and her son, is charged with the brutal stabbing murder of the woman early Saturday after he returned home from a night of drinking with friends, police said.

Joseph Patrick Dacy will appeal in court today charged with murdering Mirinda Isabel Enck, 55, a divorcee in her home at 1428 Churchill Rd. Dacy, a former classmate of 18-year-old Brian Enck at Conant High School, had been living in the $60,000 home for 4½ months, police said.

Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy described Dacy as a quiet person, an aspiring rock musician. He left his parents' home, 182 Gentry Rd., Hoffman Estates, and moved in with the Encks, Conroy said.

Dacy reportedly turned himself into Hoffman Estates police at 8:50 a.m.

Saturday after he allegedly stabbed Mrs. Enck to death at 1:30 a.m. Notified of the killing, Schaumburg police went to the Enck home at 9:30 a.m. and found Mrs. Enck's partially clothed body lying face up on her bed, Conroy said.

EVIDENCE GATHERED Saturday at the Enck home will be sent today to a state crime laboratory in Springfield for analysis, Conroy said. The Enck house has been sealed, and Brian, his 26-year-old sister Mindy Biltz, of Tucson, Ariz., and their father, Mark, of Miami, who arrived in town Saturday, are staying at the home of a neighbor.

Ms. Biltz reportedly works at Pima College, Tucson, and Mark Enck works as a regional sales manager for a cruise ship company in Miami. The Enck parents were divorced six months ago, police said.

Police said Brian, on the morning of the murder, came home from a date at 2:45 a.m., went to bed, arose and dressed for work at 5:30 a.m. and left the four-bedroom house, unaware of the crime. Police Sunday did not know the whereabouts of Dacy during this time.

Police said neighbors told them they saw or heard no suspicious activity early Saturday at the Enck house.

Dacy will appear at 9:30 a.m. today in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court for a bond hearing, police said.

Airport shuttle bus ridership low: officials

Ridership on Continental Air Transport's minibuses between O'Hare Airport and Arlington Heights, Palatine and Barrington continues to disappoint Continental officials.

"We're not doing very well at all. We're not developing the ridership levels we had anticipated," said John C. McCarthy, vice president.

The minibuses usually only have one or two riders and hardly ever more than four, McCarthy said.

Originally, Continental had hoped that the buses would carry an average of eight riders, he said.

The 120-day experimental service began three weeks ago after Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan signed a complaint with the Illinois Commerce Commission last year,

FIVE BUSES depart from the Arlington Park railway station each weekday. Three originate at the Barrington station and stop at the Palatine station.

Four buses leave O'Hare each day, with two continuing on from Arlington Park to Palatine and Barrington.

Specific schedule information is available from Continental by calling 454-7800.

"From people we've talked to, we still feel our scheduling is accurate. We now are working through travel agencies and with businesses to try to generate additional riders," McCarthy said.

STEVE MADDOCK, Des Plaines; State Rep. Daniel Pierce, Highland Park, and Gwen Martin, Arlington Heights, followed the lead of other delegates to the Democratic Convention Sunday and tried to get settled in hotels and learn how to maneuver in the bustling city of New York.

Water system hook-up fee to be debated today

A proposal to charge a one-time service connection fee for new users to hook into the village water system will be discussed tonight by the Palatine administration, finance and legislation committee.

The matter was referred to the committee last month by the planning, building and zoning committee following a discussion of the proposal. The issue was presented to the board by Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig who said the fee is needed to provide funds for future water system improvements.

Harwig proposed a $600 charge for new users to connect to the village water system. He said a $150 charge is assessed now for installing water meters, which is the only fee new users pay.

The village manager said it costs the village about $700 each time a new user is added to the system. He proposed the $600 figure as a reasonable amount to offset the village's actual cost for installing new meters.

HARWIG PROPOSES to use the funds from the fee charge to provide for expansion of the water system without charging current residents. He said funds for such expansion and maintenance currently are provided in the water rate fee structure.

By establishing the one-time connection charge, future higher water rates for current customers can be avoided, Harwig said.

The committee will discuss the proposed fee for the connection.

The committee will meet at 8 p.m. at the Palatine Public Library, 500 N. Benton St.

A meeting of the health, safety and welfare committee will precede the administration meeting at 7 p.m. The committee will discuss a proposed resolution to ban smoking in all village public buildings.

The village board will meet at 9 p.m.

Copyright suit filed against owner of eatery

Four songs allegedly performed without authorization at Uncle Andy's Cow Palace, Northwest Highway and Quentin Road, Palatine, resulted in a suit filed Friday in U.S. District Court against owner John Bakos.

Field staff members for Broadcast Music Inc. (BMI) said they witnessed the songs being performed by a live band at the restaurant and lounge in January. The suit alleges that the songs, "China Grove," "Get Down Tonight," "Ain't No Sunshine" and "Help Me Rhonda," were performed without authorization from their writers or publishers and in violation of the U.S. Copyright Act.

The suit asks for damages, attorney's fees and court costs. The usual damage award, decided by the court, is $250 per composition per performance. Therefore, the damages in the Cow Palace case probably would total $1,000 plus fees and court costs.

Illinois group backs Adlai for VP

Delegates sample the Big Apple

by STEVE BROWN

NEW YORK — U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., Sunday received formal endorsement for the vice presidential nomination from the Illinois delegation to the Democratic National Convention. But mostly it was a day for delegates to begin finding their way around New York City amidst delays and unfamiliar surroundings.

Stevenson's endorsement came after the state delegation caucused to elect Mayor Richard J. Daley as its chairman. The state delegation's demonstration of unity was in stark contrast to the 1972 convention when Daley and the bulk of his delegates from Chicago were ousted from the gathering in a credentials battle.

The show of unity began when James Wall of Elmhurst, Carter's Illinois campaign manager, nominated Daley for the chairmanship. Wall backed George McGovern in 1972 and frequently has found himself at odds with the mayor.

Several statewide candidates, including Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, spoke about the problems in 1972 and this year's harmony indicating the strength of the Democratic party in Illinois.

AN EXPECTED fight over the election of a vice chairman evaporated when Lucille Gallagher, Arlington Heights, declined to put her name in nomination for the position. A number of women

DAVID HEIER

Little big man making sprint for success

by DON FRISKE

To be a successful jockey, you have to be small, but think big.

David Heier, an 18-year-old learning the craft at Arlington Park, fits the descriptions.

The 5-foot-3, 105-pound apprentice jockey, who is currently living with his father in Mount Prospect, has set high goals for himself.

ABOUT FIVE years ago, he was in New Orleans, where he was convinced that his future should be at the race track.

"This guy told me that jockeys drive around in big cars, flash big bills and have lots of beautiful women around them," Heier said after a race last week. "Right there and then, I said that's for me."

Heier remembered how his grandmother used to kid him about being small and he was impressed by the highly optimistic advice of his new friend.

"I knew I had to learn and start from the bottom, but I never really knew what I was in for," Heier said.

HE EXPLAINED how he was "messed over" for three years by people who owned horses, but knew little about them. His first experience was with the uncle of his new friend in California.

After spending six months there, he returned to New Orleans for a year. When the race season was over, he headed for California again.

He was hitchhiking and during the trip he somehow got separated from

HEIER SPENT three years on the ground level as a groom and a hotwalker. After spending some time in New York and Florida, he made a deal with a man in New Orleans.

"I galloped all of his horses for free, just so I could get my license. I did this for two months earlier this year. It was hard work," Heier said.

But the deal paid off in other ways. He met Gerald Sampa, the man he feels helped him the most.

"I owe a lot to him, though he won't take any credit for it," Heier said. "He looked after me, taught me how to relax a horse and he got on my back a lot, which upset me at the time. But I realized now that it paid off."

HEIER HAS been racing since February. He rode in three races in New Orleans and has been in the same number at Arlington Park this season.

"Jockeys are like fingerprints," he said. "Each has their own technique and style. You have to take the best points from the best jockeys and also watch their mistakes and then build your own style around that."

Heier took three years to distinguish between the people who were making false promises and those who were sincere.

"IF I HADN'T been messed over for so many years, I'd have been riding a long time ago. There were many times when I had reasons — valid reasons — to quit, but I knew that I would make it sooner or later," he said.

Even though he admits he has a long way to go, he has matured much in the past few years. During a time when many teen-agers wait for their future to come to them, Heier was

Skinner asks state corruption ranking

Which of the 50 states is the most corrupt? That's the interesting question the legislative council will spend part of the summer trying to answer. The man who asked them to find out is state Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake. Despite scandals and/or convictions involving such notables as Paul Powell, Otto Kerner, Thomas Keane and untold numbers of legislators and local officials, Skinner says he doesn't think Illinois will turn out to be the most corrupt state.

He thinks oil politics will win that honor for Texas. But he also won't discount the possibility that New Jersey, Florida, Pennsylvania or Spiro Agnew's home state of Maryland might top honors. Skinner said last week he became interested in the general subject of political corruption several years ago at a college reunion when a political science professor told him, "You have to have corruption to make the system work." To fight that kind of acceptance of graft and impropriety, Skinner said, he wants to "somehow systematize" reports of political irregularities. If some precise index of corruption can be compiled, he said, voters will find it easier to assess the need for change in their state.

"At some point, you need to purge the system," he said. He said he'd like to have an index of the percentage of legislators indicted in each state, the numbers of local officials indicted and some overall impression of the seriousness of each state's problem. Skinner said he's not exactly sure how the corruption ranking might improve government.

Youth dies in cycle crash

Michael Dexter, 17, Galesburg, died Sunday of injuries sustained when he lost control of the motorcycle he was driving and it slid under a pickup truck. Authorities said Dexter was not touched by the truck. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital in Galesburg after the accident Saturday night, then was transferred to St. Francis Hospital in Peoria. He died three hours after the crash.

Woman run over by her car

Teen drowns in pool

A Michigan teen-ager drowned Saturday in the pool beneath a spillway at Devil's Kitchen Lake near Cartersville. Authorities said Mark Caratelli, 17, Madison Heights, Mich., apparently was swimming in the pool or fell into the water while fishing. He and his parents had been on a picnic at the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Preserve near this Southern Illinois town during a vacation visit with Caratelli's uncle, Ray Lukac, Herrin.

S-curve work may be stalled until July 1977

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppey said he will recommend to the Mount Prospect Village Board that improvements to the Elmhurst Road S-curve be postponed until July 1977.

The $623,000 construction project originally was scheduled to begin this month. However, the Federal Highway Administration failed to approve the project in time to meet a June bid deadline.

Eppey said contractors might be more eager to start a job at the beginning of next year's construction season rather than during the middle of the current one.

"And their prices might reflect that," he added. "We won't lose a thing. It will minimize the inconvenience and we'll probably get better prices from contractors."

THE VILLAGE will not lose federal funding for the project by delaying the construction date, Eppey said. By terms of a contract reached between the village and the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, the state will subsidize $167,000 of the project, the FHA will fund $402,000 of the construction and the village will pay $54,000.

If the board supports Eppey's recommendation, the project then would be let for bids in June 1977. Construction would start in July and the improvements would be complete by September. "It will be better than having a half-completed, botched up thing all winter long," Eppey said.

Village officials have said the S-curve will be closed during the three months of construction. Improvements will include the installation of a traffic signal at Lincoln Street, widening traffic lanes to 11 feet where now they are nine feet between Shabonee Trail and Milburn Avenue and repaving and rebanking most of the curve.

Prospect Hts. disputes paying road upkeep bill

Prospect Heights officials are questioning whether to pay a $2,940 bill from the Wheeling Township Road and Bridge District for road maintenance provided since late May.

City officials contend the township is receiving motor fuel tax and road and bridge tax funds levied last year from Prospect Heights residents that should cover the cost of the service.

The city will begin receiving motor fuel tax funds from the state this fall and is expected to receive half of the revenues collected by the township from road and bridge taxes.

Until those revenues are available to the city, Prospect Heights officials say the township should continue road maintenance to the community at no additional charge.

However, Arthur Olsen, township highway commissioner, has decided to discontinue regular road service to Prospect Heights and to charge the city for emergency road service on the advice of the Wheeling Township attorney.

THE COMMUNITY now is autonomous and must provide its own public works, Olsen said, "but I don't want to leave the city without at least emergency road service if they need it."

The $2,940.04 bill includes the cost of regular road maintenance that the township provided the city from May 24, when Prospect Heights city officials were installed, to June 7, when the township attorney advised Olsen to discontinue regular service.

Olsen said it cost the township $2,746.67 in equipment, labor and materials to patch street holes, cut down dead trees and replace traffic signs during the two-week period.

The bill also includes $193.37 in expenses during the remainder of June when the township provided only emergency road service to the city. The emergency service involved the replacement of two stop signs and the filling of several large street holes, he said.

OLSEN SAID he will charge interest on the payment if the city does not pay the bill by July 20.

The city has no money and does not expect to receive state and county revenues until this fall. It is using borrowed funds to pay for necessary expenses until then.

"I'm against paying the bill until we find out why we have to pay the township when they are already collecting tax revenues to cover the cost for the kind of road maintenance work they are doing," said Ald. Edward Bryant, member of the city council's public works committee.

Attorneys for the city and the township are attempting to negotiate an agreement between the two governing bodies for continued road maintenance until Prospect Heights has a permanent form of public works service.

Delegates sample the Big Apple

by STEVE BROWN
Herald political writer
NEW YORK — U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., Sunday received formal endorsement for the vice presidential nomination from the Illinois delegation to the Democratic National Convention. But mostly it was a day for delegates to begin finding their way around New York City amidst delays and unfamiliar surroundings.

Stevenson's endorsement came after the state delegation caucused to elect Mayor Richard J. Daley as its chairman. The state delegation's demonstration of unity was in stark contrast to the 1972 convention when Daley and the bulk of his delegates from Chicago were ousted from the gathering in a credentials battle.

The show of unity began when James Wall of Elmhurst, Carter's Illinois campaign manager, nominated Daley for the chairmanship. Wall backed George McGovern in 1972 and frequently has found himself at odds with the mayor.

Several statewide candidates, including Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, spoke about the problems in 1972 and this year's harmony indicating the strength of the Democratic party in Illinois.

AN EXPECTED fight over the election of a vice chairman evaporated when Lucille Gallagher, Arlington Heights, declined to put her name in nomination for the position. A number of women

DAVID HEIER

Little big man making sprint for success

by DON FRISKE

To be a successful jockey, you have to be small, but think big.

David Heier, an 18-year-old learning the craft at Arlington Park, fits the descriptions.

The 5-foot-3, 105-pound apprentice jockey, who is currently living with his father in Mount Prospect, has set high goals for himself.

ABOUT FIVE years ago, he was in New Orleans, where he was convinced that his future should be at the race track.

"This guy told me that jockeys drive around in big cars, flash big bills and have lots of beautiful women around them," Heier said after a race last week. "Right there and then, I said that's for me."

Heier remembered how his grandmother used to kid him about being small and he was impressed by the highly optimistic advice of his new friend.

"I knew I had to learn and start from the bottom, but I never really knew what I was in for," Heier said.

HE EXPLAINED how he was "messed over" for three years by people who owned horses, but knew little about them. His first experience was with the uncle of his new friend in California.

After spending six months there, he returned to New Orleans for a year. When the race season was over, he headed for California again.

Today

the others he was travelling with. "I ended up in Denver, Colo. and went straight to the nearest track," he said. "That's all I knew and I figured I could get a job. I worked there for about four or five months."

HEIER SPENT three years on the ground level as a groom and a hotwalker. After spending some time in New York and Florida, he made a deal with a man in New Orleans.

"I galloped all of his horses for free, just so I could get my license. I did this for two months earlier this year. It was hard work," Heier said.

But the deal paid off in other ways. He met Gerald Sampa, the man he feels helped him the most.

"I owe a lot to him, though he won't take any credit for it," Heier said. "He looked after me, taught me how to relax a horse and he got on my back a lot, which upset me at the time. But I realized now that it paid off."

HEIER HAS been racing since February. He rode in three races in New Orleans and has been in the same number at Arlington Park this season.

"Jockeys are like fingerprints," he said. "Each has their own technique and style. You have to take the best points from the best jockeys and also watch their mistakes and then build your own style around that."

Heier took three years to distinguish between the people who were making false promises and those who were sincere.

"IF I HADN'T been messed over for so many years, I'd have been riding a long time ago. There were many times when I had reasons — valid reasons — to quit, but I knew that I would make it sooner or later," he said.

Even though he admits he has a long way to go, he has matured much in the past few years. During a time when many teen-agers wait for their future come to them, Heier was

Skinner asks state corruption ranking

Which of the 50 states is the most corrupt? That's the interesting question the legislative council will spend part of the summer trying to answer. The man who asked them to find out is state Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake. Despite scandals and-or convictions involving such notables as Paul Powell, Otto Kerner, Thomas Keane and untold numbers of legislators and local officials, Skinner says he doesn't think Illinois will turn out to be the most corrupt state.

He thinks oil politics will win that honor for Texas. But he also won't discount the possibility that New Jersey, Florida, Pennsylvania or Spiro Agnew's home state of Maryland might cop top honors. Skinner said last week he became interested in the general subject of political corruption several years ago at a college reunion when a political science professor told him, "You have to have corruption to make the system work." To fight that kind of acceptance of graft and impropriety, Skinner said, he wants to "somehow systematize" reports of political irregularities. If some precise index of corruption can be compiled, he said, voters will find it easier to assess the need for change in their state.

"At some point, you need to purge the system," he said. He said he'd like to have an index of the percentage of legislators indicted in each state, the numbers of local officials indicted and some overall impression of the seriousness of each state's problem. Skinner said he's not exactly sure how the corruption ranking might improve government.

Youth dies in cycle crash

Michael Dexter, 17, Galesburg, died Sunday of injuries sustained when he lost control of the motorcycle he was driving and it slid under a pickup truck. Authorities said Dexter was not touched by the truck. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital in Galesburg after the accident Saturday night, then was transferred to St. Francis Hospital in Peoria. He died three hours after the crash.

Woman run over by her car

Teen drowns in pool

A Michigan teen-ager drowned Saturday in the pool beneath a spillway at Devil's Kitchen Lake near Cartersville. Authorities said Mark Caratelli, 17, Madison Heights, Mich., apparently was swimming in the pool or fell into the water while fishing. He and his parents had been on a picnic at the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Preserve near this Southern Illinois town during a vacation visit with Caratelli's uncle, Ray Lukac, Herrin.

2 policemen shot in narcotics raid

Two Chicago policemen were shot during a narcotics raid on a South Side apartment Saturday night. Two brothers were charged in the case. Officer Clarence Travis, 43, was admitted to St. Bernard Hospital with a gunshot wound in his left wrist. He was listed in good condition Sunday. Lovejoy Foster, 44, was treated for a graze wound near his left eye and released. The two were shot when they attempted to serve a search warrant at an apartment, authorities said. William Currie, 22, was charged with two counts of attempted murder, two counts of aggravated battery and possession of heroin.

Currie's brother, Joseph, 26, was charged with possession of heroin. Bond for William Currie was set at $100,000 and at $10,000 for Joseph Currie. Both cases were continued until Tuesday.

Powder Puff pilots brave storm, land in Wilmington

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Approximately 35 female pilots flying in the 20th annual Powder Puff Derby braved a major East Coast thunderstorm system Sunday and landed at the Wilmington airport, the last stop on their 2,916 mile coast-to-coast journey.

The rest of the 200 planes which took off Friday from Sacramento, Calif., are expected in Monday the last day of the contest.

Three planes landed in Wilmington on Saturday.

A contest official said poor weather delayed many of the pilots Sunday morning, but by midday most were in the air, heading east.

"THEY'RE PRETTY tough gals, a little rain won't bother them," the spokeswoman said.

Most of the planes landing Sunday flew in from Parkersburg, W.Va., or Nashville.

This year's event is the last in the 47 year history of the contest, which pits the flying skills of the nation's best female pilots against one another.

The first Powder Puff Derby was organized by Amelia Earhart in 1929. It has been an annual event since 1947.

Dvylis wins essay contest

Senior citizen Anton J. Dvylis, 5 N. Waverly Pl., recently won first prize in an essay contest, "What Will My Community Be Like in the Year 2076." The competition was sponsored by the Soroptimist International of Des Plaines Women's Service Organization. Dvylis was awarded a $100 U.S. savings bond for his winning entry.

The 900-word essay predicted the village future to include a dramatic modernization of the downtown area, schools that will turn out geniuses, the end of single-family homes and big growth in population through apartment high-rises.

Dvylis looks for an era of electric vehicles and perhaps an entirely new type of transportation. He expects a demand for more services and higher taxes as a result. He believes the value of the dollar will slide and prices of goods and services to go up with about two thirds of the community receiving government subsidies of one kind or another.

A Mount Prospect booster, Anton concluded, "I shall continue to live the rest of my lifetime to the best of my ability to contribute whatever I can to the betterment of this community, my Mount Prospect. After me — after all of us — there will come men and women with brighter minds to solve the arising problems and keep on building this community to be a better place for future generations to live in."

A WHOPPING 243 units of blood were collected during the regional North Suburban Blood Center Drive held at Randhurst. Norma Murauskis, chairman of the Mount Prospect SureBlood Program participating in the joint effort, was particularly complimentary to merchants of the shopping center who allowed employees to donate blood during working hours. She also praised all of the donors and the volunteer workers.

VANDALISM in Mount Prospect continues at a high rate. During the month of June, police records show 128 incidents resulting in $8,415.00 damage to property. Total 1976, to date, shows 665 incidents with $52,375 damage.

In 1975, 1255 reported acts of vandalism in the village caused $211,229 damage.

COUNTRYSIDE CENTER for the Handicapped, where several Mount Prospect residents attend or work, recently opened a country-atmosphere store with proceeds to benefit the center. Items such as nearly new books, toys, housewares, handmade items, sporting goods, plants and antiques are available there.

The store is located on the grounds of Countryside in Palatine on Plum Grove Road, off U.S. Rte. 12 and is open every Thursday from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Panel to study new draft of proposed ethics law

The second draft of a proposed ethics ordinance will be reviewed tonight by the Mount Prospect Judiciary Committee.

The meeting begins at 8 p.m. in village hall, 100 S. Emerson St.

An income disclosure clause, the provision sought by Mayor Robert D. Teichert last May when he asked the committee to consider updating the ordinance, is not included in the proposal. Judiciary committee members Theodore J. Wattenberg, Leo Floros and Michael H. Minton have said they would not disclose their annual incomes. They contend a mandatory provision that elected officials do so is unnecessary.

The only disclosure statements required by the proposed ordinance pertain to business relationships and interest in real property other than principal residences.

Hopefuls sought for school post

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 will accept applications until July 19 from residents who are interested in filling the vacancy on the board of education created by the resignation of Jack Lane.

Lane's resignation was announced at the June 24 board meeting.

Lane, of 3112 N. Volz Dr., Arlington Heights, said he resigned from the board after five years because he is moving out of the district.

Residents who are interested in applying for the position may contact the administration center at 537-8270.

The board will conduct interviews with prospective candidates beginning at 7:30 p.m. July 21. The new board member will be announced at the July 22 board meeting.

Anyone who is at least 18 years old, a resident of the district for at least a year and a registered voter, may apply for the post.

Temporary typists OK'd

The Prospect Heights City Council has authorized its city clerk and mayor to hire temporary typing help when necessary.

Ald. Frederick Gilman, chairman of the council's personnel committee who has investigated hiring of temporary help, said the typists would be paid up to $3.50 per hour for no more than seven hours each week.

City Clerk Nancy Lambert said she and Mayor Richard E. Wolf are being "burdened" with the typing of ordinances, reports, minutes and letters. The typists would be on "an on-call basis only," and would be used until the city has established a working city hall, she said.

Man fractures skull in cycle crash

A Mount Prospect man suffered a fractured skull after he lost control of his motorcycle on River Road Saturday afternoon, police said.

Police said Charles R. Young, 9 S. Wille Rd., lost control of his motorcycle at 5:30 p.m. Saturday and slid 300 feet on dry pavement before coming to a stop at the intersection of River Road and Woodview Drive, Mount Prospect.

Firefighters transported Young to Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, where he was reported in stable condition Sunday night. Police said Young's motorcycle sustained $400 damage.

Curfew law, downtown work before trustees

Proposed central business district improvements and a local curfew ordinance will be discussed tonight by the Arlington Heights Village Board.

The meeting begins at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 71 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Trustee August Bettman, chairman of the special committee studying downtown improvements, will report recent recommendations made by the committee, including the construction of two 500-car parking garages.

The first garage is to be located on village-owned property on Vail Avenue and two adjacent lots that will be purchased with community development funds received from the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

THE COMMITTEE also has agreed that land should be purchased on the north side of the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks for the construction of a second parking garage.

The committee last month recommended that a special service tax district be established to pay for the proposed improvements.

The special tax district would have the borders of the commercial zoning district as its boundaries, according to the committee's recommendation. Such a tax district would mean the proposed parking garages and possibly pedestrian shopping malls would be paid for by downtown property owners rather than by all Arlington Heights taxpayers.

Several small businessmen from the downtown area said they plan to attend tonight's meeting to oppose the committee's proposals.

THE CURFEW ORDINANCE up for adoption is intended to curb juvenile vandalism which affected one-third of the residents of Arlington Heights last year, according to village statistics.

An ordinance derived from home-rule powers currently sets curfew times at 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and at midnight on Friday and Saturday.

The board last month ordered Village Atty. Jack Siegel to draft a local curfew ordinance, although the state's curfew ordinance has been declared unconstitutional by the 2nd District Appellate Court of Illinois on the basis that it restricts freedom of movement without proper justification.

Siegel said he expects the Illinois Supreme Court to overturn that ruling this fall.

The curfew ordinance being considered tonight is modeled after the state curfew law but has been "tightened up" to meet the objections stated by the appellate court, Siegel said.

The ordinance written by Siegel states that an emergency situation exists in Arlington Heights because of the extensive vandalism. It specifically limits the area of the ordinance to the village limits and also places a one-year limitation on it.

Part of the opinion of the appellate court relates to the fact that the state statute was overbroad in that it covered the entire state and that it was unlimited as to duration and not in response to an emergency situation," Siegel said in a letter to village trustees.

NEW YORK — U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., Sunday received formal endorsement for the vice presidential nomination from the Illinois delegation to the Democratic National Convention. But mostly it was a day for delegates to begin finding their way around New York City amidst delays and unfamiliar surroundings.

Stevenson's endorsement came after the state delegation caucus to elect Mayor Richard J. Daley as its chairman. The state

Survey tells how to zero in on security problems

The Arlington Heights Police Department's crime prevention bureau want to make your home or business a less attractive target for criminals.

The bureau is offering village homeowners and businessmen free surveys to pinpoint security gaps that could be an opening for robbers or burglars.

"It is to show people defects they may have in their security systems. We want to help eliminate criminal opportunities. There are some places that should hang up a sign inviting the criminals," said patrolman John Fellman of the bureau.

The survey will be given to any village resident or business man that calls the bureau, 251-2340, between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. and requests one.

FELLMAN SAID the weak points in most homes are found in the doors and windows. He said the answer in both cases is the same — improved locks.

"About 99 per cent of the home burglaries in town were the result of entries through the doors or windows," he said.

And often times the burglars found very little resistance, he said.

Door locks should be a good quality deadbolt variety. The deadbolt is a steel bar that enters the frame when locked, preventing the door from being forced open or the latch slipped in a matter of seconds with a credit card.

FELLMAN SAID the bureau will not recommend specific brands of locks — that he said, is not the bureau's business — but will recommend

by DON FRISKE

To be a successful jockey you have to be small, but think big.

David Heier, an 18-year-old learning the craft at Arlington Park, fits the descriptions.

The 5-foot-7, 105-pound apprentice jockey who is currently living with his father in Mount Prospect, has set high goals for himself.

ABOUT FIVE years ago, he was in New Orleans, where he was convinced that his future should be at the race track.

"This guy told me that jockeys drive around in big cars, flash big bills and have lots of beautiful women around them," Heier said after a race last week. "Right there and then, I said that's for me."

Heier remembered how his grandmother used to kid him about being small and he was impressed by the highly optimistic advice of his new friend.

"I knew I had to learn and start from the bottom, but I never really knew what I was in for," Heier said.

HE EXPLAINED how he was "messed over" for three years by people who owned horses, but knew little about them. His first experience was with the uncle of his new friend in California.

After spending six months there he returned to New Orleans for a year. When the race season was over, he headed for California again.

He was hitchhiking and during the trip he somehow got separated from the others he was travelling with. I ended up in Denver, Colo. and went straight to the nearest track," he said. "That's all I knew and I figured I could get a job. I worked there for about four or five months."

HEIER SPENT three years on the ground level as a groom and a hotwalker. After spending some time in New York and Florida, he made a deal with a man in New Orleans.

"I galloped all of his horses for free just so I could get my license. I did this for two months earlier this year. It was hard work," Heier said.

But the deal paid off in other ways. He met Gerald Sampaio, the man he feels helped him the most.

"I owe a lot to him, though he won't take any credit for it," Heier said. "He looked after me, taught me how to relax a horse and he got on my back a lot, which upset me at the time. But I realized now that it paid off."

HEIER HAS been racing since February. He rode in three races in New Orleans and has been in the same number at Arlington Park this season.

"Jockeys are like fingerprints," he said. "Each has their own technique and style. You have to take the best points from the best jockeys and also watch their mistakes and then build your own style around that."

Heier took three years to distinguish between the people who were making false promises and those who were sincere.

"IF I HADN'T been messed over for so many years, I'd have been riding a long time ago. There were many times when I had reasons — valid reasons — to quit, but I knew that I would make it sooner or later," he said.

Even though he admits he has a long way to go, he has matured much in the past few years. During a time when many teen-agers wait for their future to come to them, Heier was INVESTIGATORS ARE attempting to determine why two heavily loaded Southern Railway System freight trains involved in a head-on collision Saturday were on the same track. The two trains, both moving slowly, collided near Centerville. Two locomotives and about 15 cars were derailed. No injuries were reported.

Skinner asks state corruption ranking

Which of the 50 states is the most corrupt? That's the interesting question the legislative council will spend part of the summer trying to answer. The man who asked them to find out is state Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake. Despite scandals and-or convictions involving such notables as Paul Powell, Otto Kerner, Thomas Keane and untold numbers of legislators and local officials, Skinner says he doesn't think Illinois will turn out to be the most corrupt state.

He thinks oil politics will win that honor for Texas. But he also won't discount the possibility that New Jersey, Florida, Pennsylvania or Spuro Agnew's home state of Maryland might cop top honors. Skinner said last week he became interested in the general subject of political corruption several years ago at a college reunion when a political science professor told him, "You have to have corruption to make the system work." To fight that kind of acceptance of graft and impropriety, Skinner said, he wants to "somehow systematize" reports of political irregularities. If some precise index of corruption can be compiled, he said, voters will find it easier to assess the need for change in their state.

"At some point, you need to purge the system," he said. He said he'd like to have an index of the percentage of legislators indicted in each state, the numbers of local officials indicted and some overall impression of the seriousness of each state's problem. Skinner said he's not exactly sure how the corruption ranking might improve government.

Youth dies in cycle crash

Michael Dexter, 17, Galesburg, died Sunday of injuries sustained when he lost control of the motorcycle he was driving and it slid under a pickup truck. Authorities said Dexter was not touched by the truck. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital in Galesburg after the accident Saturday night, then was transferred to St. Francis Hospital in Peoria. He died three hours after the crash.

Woman run over by her car

Teen drowns in pool

A Michigan teen-ager drowned Saturday in the pool beneath a spillway at Devil's Kitchen Lake near Carterville. Authorities said Mark Caratelli, 17, Madison Heights, Mich., apparently was swimming in the pool or fell into the water while fishing. He and his parents had been on a picnic at the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Preserve near this Southern Illinois town during a vacation visit with Caratelli's uncle, Ray Lukac, Herrin.

2 policemen shot in narcotics raid

Two Chicago policemen were shot during a narcotics raid on a South Side apartment Saturday night. Two brothers were charged in the case. Officer Clarence Travis, 43, was admitted to St. Bernard Hospital with a gunshot wound in his left wrist. He was listed in good condition Sunday. Lovejoy Foster, 44, was treated for a graze wound near his left eye and released. The two were shot when they attempted to serve a search warrant at an apartment, authorities said. William Currie, 22, was charged with two counts of attempted murder, two counts of aggravated battery and possession of heroin.

Currie's brother, Joseph, 26, was charged with possession of heroin. Bond for William Currie was set at $100,000 and at $10,000 for Joseph Currie. Both cases were continued until Tuesday.

Powder Puff pilots brave storm, land in Wilmington

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Approximately 35 female pilots flying in the 29th annual Powder Puff Derby braved a major East Coast thunderstorm system Sunday and landed at the Wilmington airport, the last stop on their 2,916 mile coast-to-coast journey.

The rest of the 200 planes which took off Friday from Sacramento, Calif., are expected in Monday the last day of the contest.

Three planes landed in Wilmington on Saturday.

A contest official said poor weather delayed many of the pilots Sunday morning, but by midday most were in the air, heading east.

"THEY'RE PRETTY tough gals, a little rain won't bother them," the spokeswoman said.

Most of the planes landing Sunday flew in from Parkersburg, W. Va., or Nashville.

This year's event is the last in the 47 year history of the contest, which pits the flying skills of the nation's best female pilots against one another.

The first Powder Puff Derby was organized by Amelia Earhart in 1929. It has been an annual event since 1947.

Continental officials say:

Airport shuttle bus turnout poor

Ridership on Continental Air Transport's minibuses between O'Hare Airport and Arlington Heights, Palatine and Barrington continues to disappoint Continental officials.

"We're not doing very well at all. We're not developing the ridership levels we had anticipated," said John C. McCarthy, vice president.

The minibuses usually only have one or two riders and hardly ever more than four, McCarthy said.

Originally, Continental had hoped that the buses would carry an average of eight riders, he said.

The 120-day experimental service began three weeks ago after Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan signed a complaint with the Illinois Commerce Commission last year, charging Continental with violating its charter by suspending the service two years ago.

FIVE BUSES depart from the Arlington Park railway station each weekday. Three originate at the Barrington station and stop at the Palatine station.

Four buses leave O'Hare each day, with two continuing on from Arlington Park to Palatine and Barrington.

Specific schedule information is available from Continental by calling 454-7800.

"From people we've talked to, we still feel our scheduling is accurate. We now are working through travel agencies and with businesses to try to generate additional riders," McCarthy said.

Security measures told in survey

mend certain types as being more secure.

He said an adequate deadbolt lock costs about $15 to $20.

"It all depends on how much you have to protect," he said of the lock prices.

Other homeowner recommendations include replacing hollow or glass doors with solid ones.

As with improved locks, stronger doors will not stop burglars entirely, but will increase the time it takes them to enter.

FELLMAN SAID burglars are more likely to pass a strong door fitted with a good lock in favor of flimsier ones. The longer the burglar has to work on a lock, the greater his chances of being seen.

Likewise, exterior lighting and low shrubs will make a burglar more visible to passers-by.

Vacationers can help make sure their homes will be intact when they return by informing the police of when they will be gone.

Beat cars receive a listing of vacationers' addresses, Fellman said.

TELLING THE neighbors to keep an eye on the home, setting televisions, radios and lights with automatic timers also help reduce the chance of a burglary.

Businessmen can have their stores and procedures examined, too, to help avoid robberies and burglaries.

Leaving large sums of money on hand, going to the bank at the same time daily, or just forgetting to lock doors are common errors, Fellman said.

Persons and businesses that request the survey will receive a written report detailing potential problems and possible solutions. The survey and the recommendations will be kept confidential, Fellman said.

"These are primarily just a few simple steps people can take to eliminate unnecessary risks," he said.

Opening of crossing at Walnut St. stalled

The opening of the new Walnut Street railroad crossing has been delayed because some parts needed for the signal crossings are unavailable, a Chicago and North Western Ry. spokesman said.

The railway had planned to have the crossing open by the end of June until the parts problem occurred, said John Foote, a signalmaster.

Foote said he could not predict when the parts will be available. All paving work at the crossing has been completed, he said.

Hopefuls sought for school post

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 will accept applications until July 19 from residents who are interested in filling the vacancy on the board of education created by the resignation of Jack Lane.

Lane's resignation was announced at the June 24 board meeting.

Lane, of 3112 N. Volz Dr., Arlington Heights, said he resigned from the board after five years because he is moving out of the district.

Residents who are interested in applying for the position may contact the administration center at 537-8270.

The board will conduct interviews with prospective candidates beginning at 7:30 p.m. July 21. The new board member will be announced at the July 22 board meeting.

Anyone who is at least 18 years old, a resident of the district for at least a year and a registered voter, may apply for the post.

Woman shocks burglar in act of rifling drawer

The would-be burglar apparently was more surprised than the homeowner who discovered him.

Arlington Heights police said Lena N. Embry, of the 1100 block of N. Chestnut Avenue, was watching television shortly before 10 p.m. Friday when she heard a noise in an adjacent room.

She swung open a door and discovered a burglar rifling her dresser, police said. Police said she asked him what he was doing.

The burglar looked up, cried, "Oh my God," and then bolted for the door, almost knocking down Ms. Embry as he ran past, police said. The burglar ran out the back door of Ms. Embry's house and disappeared into the night, taking no booty with him, police said.

Police said the burglar gained entry to the house by cutting open a screen door. The culprit had ransacked two dresser drawers before being discovered, police said.

16 cases of beer stolen off truck

Thieves burglarized a truck in Arlington Heights early Saturday morning, taking 16 cases of beer valued at $100, police said.

Thieves took the cases containing 12-ounce bottles from a loading dock at the C.S. Albert Distributing Co., 1717 E. Davis St., Arlington Heights, between 2 and 7:45 a.m. Saturday.

The driver of the truck reportedly was found asleep in his cab by a police patrol, and 16 cases of his shipment were missing from the trailer. Police said thieves apparently broke a padlock to gain entry to the truck.
